

The WEEK

By A. M. Brayton

WHAT everybody talks about is the news. This week heat has been the headline. New high—and dry—records were made. Corn jumped two feet in two weeks. Rather general rains came to the rescue of withering small grain and shrubbery, but it was insufficient to break the spell. Losses through the Dakotas will be immense. That was the bad news. It's a long chance to take, but—is it not enough for you?

The Harding disarmament proposals went forth during the week. The congressional resolution took in the navy and four nations. Harding's plan takes in the world, and both army and navy. It goes further, most logically, but is proportionately more difficult. The necessity of civilization is helping republican politics in America. Nations which would like to tell us to jump in the lake because of our rejection of their peace league, are coming in. Japan alone is backward. The mikado says, in effect, that he wants to know what is going to happen to Japan. What he really wants to know is how much the powers will permit Japan to cause to happen to China. Japan will nibble and hem and have, but she will come in. The Orient isn't ready for the great race war. The Japs will have to play the game, perhaps with a string on their nose. Of course there is politics in domestic politics and world politics, but it is not the kind of politics that we get rid of the burdens of wars and preparedness for wars, who will care by what game or process?

In urging congress to defer action on the soldiers' bonus, President Harding seems to have stepped into an upper cut that may prove a knockout as far as the soldiers' vote is concerned. Probably it is true that the country can not pay this just account now and reduce taxes at the same time, but soldiers may reply that the men who did the fighting should be first to receive the pay envelope, and they may especially resent the suggestion that further compensation even for disabled soldiers be postponed. It would have been easier for the president to win his point with the soldiers had he urged that the country immediately commit itself by legislation to pay just compensation to the men who won the war, taking immediate care of the disabled, and deferring payment to the able-bodied only to such a time as the country shall again be working on full shift. This, it would seem, is the limit of patience to be expected of the fighting men. It would be a new tax upon their fortitude, but were they assured by law of future recompense in definite amount, amounting to themselves or their heirs, payments to begin not later than a specific date, they might take into account their own interest in keeping the country a going concern able to pay wages and salaries from day to day and to lay aside something for back pay for those who saved the nation in its hour of danger.

Getting the north and south of Ireland together is the task of the preliminary conference going on in London. Craig has sent for the Ulster cabinet to join him in the conference. The Sinn Fein has shown a disposition to discount or remove obstacles, but Ulster is moving reluctantly toward agreement. The outlook is that the real difficulty lies in the preliminary conference, and that should its negotiations prove successful a broad way to permanent peace in Ireland will have been paved. Better than any others, the Irish prove the adage that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country. In all the world outside of Ireland they have shown exceptional capacity for leadership. Romantic, daring, keen of imagination, they have advanced the frontiers of all continents. It will be a wonderful Ireland when its people come into their own. It can not be great without national self-expression, nor will it be a hanging man and woman for the wearing of the green."

The legislature adjourned Thursday. The governor signed the big appropriation bills, including that giving the division of markets $120,000 for the biennium, the Cottage industrial rehabilitation bill, and other measures. As the legislature leaves, the state's income is calculated to fall short by perhaps three millions, thus forcing the governor to draw upon road funds for other purposes. Governor Paisley says that in the absence of an emergency there will be no special session, but the outlook for emergencies is bright.

Public Benefactor Admits He's An Embezzler

AUSTIN, Minn.—Embezzlement of at least $150,000 from George A. Hormel & Company, packers, was admitted late Saturday by R. J. Thompson, comptroller of the company, in a statement issued jointly with officers of the concern. No legal action had been taken against Thompson early Saturday.

Thompson, widely known in this section of the country as president of the Oakdale Poultry farm near here, and the Oakdale Holstein farm at Blooming Prairie, Minn., has assigned all his holdings to trustees for operation until their ultimate disposition is determined.

Gives Up Property

The property in Thompson's name is extensive, Hormel officials said, and that whatever the extent of Thompson's defalcations, this property will make up a large amount of it. Thompson said "everything he owned" would be used to help "square accounts."

Thompson was working with auditors in an effort to ascertain the exact amount of the shortage and the company heads refused to estimate what the loss would be, except to authorize the statement that it would be at least $150,000.

Started at $12 a Week

Thompson, a country boy, entered the employ of the Hormel company several years ago, first as a candy salesman at the plant at a wage of $12 a week. His rise was rapid and his pecuniations, he said, started shortly after he became comptroller.

No Legal Action Taken

No legal action had been taken to date against Thompson and it was indicated none is planned until it is definitely known what the shortage is. The company expects to announce the total next Wednesday.

"I must have been crazy," Thompson said, "was the only explanation for his pecuniations forthcoming from Thompson."

Rise Was Rapid

From the $12 a week clerk in the confectionery store, Thompson's rise was rapid. Every week he announced some new project and his neighbors looked forward eagerly for each announcement. One day he announced he had inherited a forty-acre farm near Leroy, which he converted into a chicken ranch. He spent $50,000 upon it. It became a mecca for travelers.

Thompson laid out beautiful parks on the farm; erected a dancing pavilion at an expense of $30,000, with a dancing floor to accommodate one thousand couples. Two thousand electric lights were installed.

Built Hotel

A hotel with fifty beds and a dining room to care for seventy-five diners was built. Then he constructed a fire station and installed two chemical engines with a permanent fire-fighting force.

A ten acre playground for children was laid out and an artificial lake built.

On a farm north of Austin he spent thousands of dollars on buildings to house his $300,000 herd of Holstein cows and his $20,000 Dorset hogs. His cows were cleaned with vacuum cleaners. Electric fans were installed in the barns and so arranged as to drive all flies to a room at one end of the building, where they were destroyed by chemical gases. His hog barn was steam heated.

Dormitory For Workers

He erected a dormitory for his hired men, spending $10,000 for rugs and draperies. There was a billiard room, a dance hall, every man in Mower and Steele counties wanted to get a job on Oakdale farm.

The Oakdale trail from the Twin Cities to Chicago was another project aided by Thompson. He named it after his farm and planned an article cut stone gateway to be erected at the Iowa state line where the trail passes Oakdale farm.

Gave Much to Charity

His subscriptions to public affairs and charity always were large. Thompson talked calmly about his trouble and declared his only present concern was to get his accounts straightened out.

Mrs. Thompson is loyal in her support of her husband and said she is ready "to start all over again" with him. They have one son, Gerald.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS GOING AHEAD WITH DISARMAMENT PLAN

Program Won't Interfere With Washington Conference and May Help

WASHINGTON AWAITS FURTHER WORD FROM JAP GOVERNMENT

Tokio Given Information as to Plans for Meeting

PARIS—By The Associated Press.—The league of nations is going ahead with its work in connection with disarmament on the theory that it will in no wise interfere with the proposed conference on limitation of armaments in Washington, and that it may develop information which may be of use to such a conference. That was the decision announced at the opening session Saturday of the temporary mixed commission for the reduction of armaments, appointed by the league, which was presided over by Rene Viviani, of France, chairman of the commission. The committee will make a general survey of the situation as set forth by data gathered by the league's consultative military and naval commission and appoint sub-committees to take up special branches of the subject.

Await Word from Tokio

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Diplomatic preliminaries to the disarmament conference went into a period of quietude Saturday while Japan deliberated whether to consent to the broad discussion of far eastern problems considered essential by this government if a serious disarmament effort is to be attempted.

So far as could be learned no word had come to the state department in response to the informal explanation made to Japan Friday relative to the probable scope of the conference. Officials, however, made no secret of their continued confidence that Japan eventually would join Great Britain, France, Italy and China in accepting full participation in the discussion.

It was emphasized in official circles that no hasty decision was sought and that there was no desire here to have the Tokyo government accept unreservedly until it had satisfied itself of the exact purposes and good faith of the United States in proposing the conference with the general opinion was that a delay of several days would ensue before the next important development.

MONEY IS NEEDED FOR KIDDIE KAMP FOR THIS SEASON

Have you made your donation... to the "Kiddie Kamp?"

Or are you waiting for Superintendent Dewey to call on you? If he hasn't called it is because he has been too busy getting the camp started and making the tired mothers and little kiddies comfortable.

Superintendent Dewey says that more money is needed to run the camp. There have been extra expenses this year, including the installation of a well, to avoid running to a neighboring farm for water for cooking and drinking purposes.

If you could hear mothers tell of the marked improvement in their children after a week at the camp, you would realize that this summer camp for mothers and children is one of the greatest humanitarian activities in this community.

Among the families enjoying the healthful outdoor life at the camp is a mother and seven children. One of the little ones has a cough of long trouble and the doctor says it must have outdoor air.

It costs $6 a day to run the camp. Do you want to run it one day?

Send your check to George D. Krause or to D. C. Dewey at the Rescue Mission.

PROPOSAL OF DE VALERA IS KEPT SECRET

Irish Leader Meets Lloyd George Again Monday and Round Table Conference is Expected on Tuesday

MEMBERS OF ULSTER CABINET ARRIVE IN LONDON SATURDAY

Confer With Craig in Preparation for Meeting With Lloyd George Monday

LONDON.—By The Associated Press.—Eamon De Valera's proposal and the nature of Sir James Craig's conversations with Premier Lloyd George remain closely guarded secrets. There was no conference between the British prime minister and the Irish republican leader Saturday, but Mr. De Valera will visit Mr. Lloyd George probably Monday afternoon and in some quarters it is predicted that a round table conference may be held Tuesday. This, however, is only indicative of the hopeful feeling generally prevailing regarding the progress of the negotiations for an Irish settlement.

The Sinn Fein delegates were joined Saturday night by Desmond Fitzgerald, Sinn Fein minister of propaganda, who has just been released from an internment camp. The delegates will remain in London for the week-end, exchanging visits with Irish sympathizers.

Three members of the Ulster cabinet, H. M. Pollock, E. A. Archdale and U. M. Andrews, together with the secretary, Colonel Spencer, also arrived in London, and joined the Marquis of Londonderry, who holds the post of minister of education in Northern Ireland. They conferred with the Ulster premier in preparation for the meeting of Sir James Craig with Premier Lloyd George after the latter's return from Chequers court Monday.

G. O. P. TARIFF BILL HAS FEW FRIENDS AMONG THE BADGER STATE CONGRESSMEN

LABOR DAY DEFINITE DATE FOR OPENING OF HISTORY PAGEANT

Postponement Welcomed as Permitting More Complete Preparation for Spectacle

Definite decision to stage the big historical pageant of La Crosse and its vicinity as a feature of Labor Day has been reached by the committee of the community pageant association. It was announced Saturday by President H. L. Williams.

Arrangements have been practically completed, and the dates of the pageant set for September 5 and 6—Labor Day and the evening following. The pageant was originally scheduled to be given yesterday and Monday evenings, but owing to conflict with the Trades and Labor council carnival was postponed. However, the additional time of preparation allowed by the change in date permits more investigation to unearth historical detail for use in the pageant, and in general is believed to promise a more complete and finished spectacle when the big event is finally staged.

The pageant is to depict, in the space of a few hours, the complete history of La Crosse and the surrounding country from legendary times to the present. For this purpose special incidents and characters, many of them familiar and others unknown except to students of the local past, will be reproduced in the flesh. Indians, Mormons, explorers, soldiers, pioneers and their contemporaries will be presented in their occupations and costumes. In all a cast of nearly a thousand people is to be used, according to the plans, drawn from the city and surrounding communities and trained by special pageant experts engaged for the purpose.

A scenario of episodes of early history of this district is now in course of preparation by a committee of historians of which Prof. A. H. Sanford is chief. Prof. Sanford has spent years in collecting a mass of information data concerning the early times in La Crosse and vicinity from which mine of information much of the scenario will be derived.

Most of Them Backing Frear in His Attack

Unless it is Changed La Follette Will Fight it When it Reaches Senate

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Wisconsin delegation in congress with few exceptions is aligned against the republican tariff bill as indicated by the vote on the rule adopted Tuesday by a vote of 223 to 100, providing the house shall vote on the measure July 21. As reported from the house ways and means committee, the bill contains provisions, in the minds of the majority of the delegation, "fundamentally indefensible" and fails to contain others vital to the maintenance of important industries in the state.

In his fight against the chemical schedule, James A. Frear, of Hudson, has mustered the support of most of the delegation. Other parts of the measure against which members of the delegation have raised particular protest are the provisions for protecting the hemp industry of the state, the tariff on potash fertilizer which is used extensively by farmers, and the duties proposed for coconut oil.

The only republicans in the house voting against the rule were members of the Wisconsin delegation. The vote was as follows:

For—Browne, Frear, Cooper, Clason.

Against—J. M. Nelson, Lampert, Kleck, Stafoord, Beck, Voigt.

Not Voting—A. P. Nelson.

La Follette Opposes

There is every reason to believe that if the fight being waged by Mr. Frear to eliminate the chemical schedule is unsuccessful, Mr. Frear, who is the representative of the state on the house ways and means committee, Mr. Browne, and Mr. Cooper will vote against the bill. In this connection, it should be noted that Senator Robert M. La Follette is known to be opposed to the bill as it stands now, and unless it is changed will offer vigorous opposition to some provisions of it.

Fail to Protect Hemp

The Wisconsin hemp association, of which F. C. Miles, of Union Grove, is president, and A. H. Wright, of Madison, is secretary, failed to obtain in the bill the protection regarded as necessary to maintain the hemp industry of the state. In letters to members of the delegation, they pointed out that the hemp industry in the state was a fairly new one and was seriously menaced by the importation of Italian hemp. They requested a duty of 5 cents a pound on all grades on line hemp fibre and 2 1/2 cents a pound on hemp tow.

"The bill gives generous protection to many farm products, but no justification exists in cutting 1909 tariff rates on hemp straw grown by the farmer, as his finished product, from 5 cents to 2 cents, the price fixed in the bill," Mr. Frear said, "nor for increasing hemp yarn rates from 6 cents per pound—Payne rates—to 8 cents a pound, or a 23 per cent increase to the manufacturer for hemp yarn, along with other yarn increases contained in the bill, a net increase to the hemp yarn manufacturer of 100 per cent beyond the Payne rates, when the 60 per cent reduction in the farmers' rate is considered."

Rug Makers Fight

Another protest against the bill comes from the manufacturers of grass rugs who want more protection against imports from Japan. H. Stelzer, president of the Duluth rug company, of Oshkosh, has been in Washington this week in an effort to have the bill changed in this respect.

From Wisconsin also comes John Maple, attorney of Milwaukee, who has seen members of the delegation in an effort to obtain support for the proposed dye embargo against which Mr. Frear is fighting.

Joseph D. Beck, of Virgoqua, vigorously condemned the failure of the committee to place a high duty on the importation of cocoanut oil which he

KEEN RIVALRY IN CLUB CONTESTS AT INTERSTATE FAIR

Three States Competing for Honors in Boys' and Girls' Event at Show

With the La Crosse Interstate fair only a little over two months away, keen rivalry is being evinced in the boys' and girls' club contests launched this year as a tri-state event at the big annual exposition.

According to letters of inquiry being received by officers of the fair association and members of the special committee in charge of the event, the boys' and girls' club contest, being tried out at the La Crosse fair for the first time as a tri-state contest, is being watched with great interest by club workers and fair managers throughout the middle west.

County agents and club workers who attended the preliminary meeting here a few weeks ago, when the plan was outlined, are working day and night to stimulate interest in this event by the various clubs, and already a large list of entrants is on file. The rivalry between Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin is especially keen, each state feeling that it has a reputation to uphold.

W. E. Spreiter, county agent, is not hesitating, but is hopeful that La Crosse county will top in the main prizes in the big event.

But whatever the outcome, officers of the fair association are assured, by the keen interest manifested in the contest, that the boys' and girls' club event will be one of the biggest drawing cards at the fair.

Raising Pavilion Funds

Encouragement in many quarters has been given the committee organized in raising funds for the erection of a stock sales pavilion on the fair grounds.

The committee will start active work in the campaign to complete the fund early this week.

Preparations for La Crosse's biggest Interstate fair are well under way. The premium list has gone to the printer and will soon be off the press and ready for distribution.

The fair will be advertised this year over a wide expanse of territory in the upper Mississippi valley, and with the new features inaugurated a big attendance is anticipated.

SHIPMENT BOARD MAY PUT LEVIATHAN INTO U. S. SERVICE AGAIN

Giant Liner Will Be Ordered Refitted or Salvaged or Sold

NEW YORK—The giant liner Leviathan which has been idle at her pier in Hoboken for two years, costing the taxpayers $40,000 a month for upkeep, will be ordered reconstructed, salvaged or sold within the next month. This was announced Saturday by Chairman Lasker of the shipping board, after he had inspected the former German liner Vaterland, which was seized during the war and converted into an American troop ship.

If it is decided to refit the 54,000 ton steamer and put her on the seas again as a first-class passenger liner, the cost probably would be $12,000,000, experts told Mr. Lasker. She would be converted into an oil burner and made ready for service by February, 1923. The cost of building and refitting a ship of the same size today would be in the neighborhood of $30,000,000, it was estimated.

Mr. Lasker said the steamer was in good condition and if necessary she could put to sea in twenty-four hours.

METZ GOVERNOR DEAD

PARIS.—General Le De Maud Ray, military governor of Metz, died Saturday. General De Maud was born in Lorraine.

FINISH DECORATIONS FOR SHRINE EVENT ARE ASSURED HERE

Down Town Streets to be Beautifully Decorated for Ceremonial August 13

Down town La Crosse will be beautifully decorated for the state shrines' ceremonial to be held here August 13, on which day this city will enter into the greatest crowd ever seen here. Committees in charge of the event estimate there will be between 10,000 and 20,000 visitors in La Crosse on the day of the big Masonic fest.

O. J. Sorensen, chairman of the committee on decorations, entered into a contract Saturday with Carl A. Semsch for the decorating of the following down town streets: Main street from Eighth to the river; Fourth street, from State to Pearl; Pearl street from Fourth to Third; Third from Pearl to Main.

A combination of shrine and national colors will be used in the decorations, which will be particularly elaborate. Penn drapes, banneries, flags and shrine emblems will be used in profusion. There will be 55 streamers across the streets, and in addition all the white way posts will be decorated.

MOVE COAL ON DOCKS

DULUTH, Minn.—Increase in orders for shipment inland has tended to relieve a situation that two weeks ago apparently indicated a coal dock congestion here, it was stated Saturday.

Approximately 3,600,000 tons of coal are stored on Duluth-Superior docks. Dockmen said shipments from lower lake ports continued on a large scale.

TRAVELERS' MORALE BETTER, PATRONS' HONESTY IMPROVES, SAY LA CROSSE HOTELMEN

Visitors Who Use Towel to Shine Shoes and Vamoose With Everything But Furniture

Called Rare Type
CAN people who pass through a hotel, stopping a day, two days or a week, be taken as a criterion of the trend in national attitudes or morals? If they can, the old world is getting better all the time, according to La Crosse hotelmen for the last few years. They base their views on these conclusions:

However much people carry away from hotels, they leave more than they take away, and it is probably of more value.

One key per room a year is the average number lost by a hotel that exercises care. Many more are taken, but hundreds are mailed back, parcel post.

Traveling salesmen don't take towels from the stations to use by hotels as much as they used to. Their sales managers are experienced men who have been over the territories and know the roads.

These are some of the observations on present day hotel life in La Crosse made by Art Cole of the Jefferson hotel, who has watched the traveling public in La Crosse, the Twin cities and other large cities for years. Another conclusion to which he has come is this:

Eighty per cent of the articles left in hotels are sent for and forwarded without cost. In a vast majority of cases the forgotten articles, usually pajamas, bed-room slippers or toilet articles, are recovered. White articles left on the bed are often forgotten, due to low visibility.

Despite the man who passed through La Crosse on his way to a camping trip and stripped his hotel room of every article easily removable that would be of use to one on a camping trip, the honesty of the traveling public is improving, as is their sense of square dealing with the hotel that serves them a room, according to Mr. Cole. The camper who helped himself to all the bedding, towels, the bath mat, soap and even the ash tray match stand, is one of a rare type, he said, whose like only turns up once or twice in a period of several years.

Troubles Still Exist

The hotel man who used a towel for shining his shoes is today in the class with the dopey Mr. Cole said. So the troubles of the hotel keeper are by no means a thing of the past, joined with the other public standards, an increasingly close scrutiny of guests' behavior is playing a large part in cutting down damages.

Modern hotels keep an absolute check on the number of bedding and bathroom articles distributed to chambermaids and require the number of soiled articles to tally with those given out," he said. "Prices of materials have gone up to a point which makes haphazard methods extremely poor business as, of course, they are in any case. The maid who turns in a short list is required to go back through all her rooms in an effort to locate lost items."

Used Blanket for Baby Wrap

One of the aggravating cases that occur once in a while, came to Mr. Cole's attention last winter. A family from the country occupied a large room. When they had gone it was found that a quarter of an expensive wool blanket had been cut out.

"They used it as a wrapping for the baby," he said. "Mr. Cole said, 'Heaven knows what made them think it fair to do a thing like that. Some people always want something for nothing. Giving the blanket certainly cut off all profit we made from their stay here and then some.'"

"The old veteran who was A. W. O. L. from a soldier's home and traveled practically from coast to coast, stopping at the best hotels and making a collection of hotel soaps and towels, together with fountain pens from the offices at which he called, was the greatest 'scoundrel' who has visited La Crosse hotels of late years," Mr. Cole said.

"He was such an interesting old chap that the hotel let him stay on as a 'compliment' after he had no means

NEWLYWEDS CAN'T SLIP BY HOTEL CLERKS IN CITY

Night occupations—a newly married couple trying to slip by the hotel clerk without "being found out."

"We do not have to guess when a newly married couple comes to the hotel," said Ed Singer, clerk at the Stoddard hotel. "I can tell them by the way they look and the things they say."

All newlyweds are so self-conscious that they get excited at the least little thing. The bride is afraid that some city tramp is going to take her hubby away and he is afraid that his newly acquired mate will run off with one of the city's slickers consequently they both hang onto each other for dear life.

"In attempting to register for a room 95 per cent of the newlyweds do it wrong. The hotel-keeper forgets to register his wife and must be told which embarrasses him. Nine out of ten will register 'Mrs. and Mr.'"

Whatever to pay his bill," he said. "Then one day the chambermaid walked into his room and saw his collection spread out. There were cakes of soap from hotels practically from coast to coast. There were towels that would have stocked a museum for the towel manufacturers, if there is such a thing. And he also had several hundred dollars worth of furniture."

tain pens. He was placed under surveillance and the soldier's home, not the one in Wausau, sent for him. They wouldn't let him take his prized collection with him, either."

Visitors' Plot Foiled

"A recent humorous incident," continued Mr. Cole, "was that of the man who roomed at a hotel and saw a handsome and costly silver cigarette case on the table. He wanted it badly, but didn't want to be too dishonest. So, that night, when he checked out, he purposely left two silk shirts, and at the next station he went back asking to be sent the things he left in his room. He thought the cigarette case would be sent with the shirts and he got—nothing. Shirts and cigarette case had disappeared and no trace of either of them was ever found."

The old fashioned traveling salesman who steamed into a hotel with an outfit of sample cases that looked like grand pianos boxed for shipment is a thing of the past, hotelmen agree. In his place one is likely to see a chap who carries a very pretty but very tiny little bag, possibly with nothing in it but his pajamas et al. Reasons are several. Sometimes the salesman has his samples shipped parcel post. In other cases he has such a tremendous outfit of samples that they all go in trunks and are displayed in one of the hotel sample rooms, not lugged around town. In any case, more head-work and less armwork is the present day rule.

IN ABRAHAM'S BOSOM

And it came to pass that the burglar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom; the rich man also died and was buried.—Mark 9: 47.

The Wind is Rising

THE cloud-burst which thrashed the capitol at Washington as the senate tucked the soldier-bonus bill into a pigeon hole was, perhaps, a symbolic warning. There were over four million men in the army, representing directly almost every family and home in the United States. Hardly any of the four million individuals did not sacrifice to serve the flag. They and their relatives know, even if congress is hazy about it, that there was a great difference between the soldier's pay check and his contemporaries' wages during the war period. They realize, if the administration does not, that in their time in uniform they lost months and even years out of their most valuable time of life. It is their country which they believe owes them an obligation of honor; they have indubitable power, if they will use it, to see that the country does as they wish. The storm that they have power to raise about the heads of the senators who voted to pigeon-hole the bonus bill can be of a violence and fury to remove almost any political landmark. Whether the tax-reduction explanation will be sufficient protection against this imminent cyclone will probably be seen without much delay. The wind is rising already.

"Manly Courage"

A LOT of things Wisconsin has done have not been popular in the east. They are constitutionally suspicious, one gathers, of the state's motto "Forward". So it may be of interest to read the following editorial from the New York Mail:

Wisconsin has given to all its women the same legal rights as men in every respect. It is the first state to do so. The rest should follow this excellent example. Grant of the right of suffrage, now universal, was a recognition of the principle that "equal rights and privileges for all citizens under the law" meant no masculine monopoly.

One of the most indefensible legal discriminations against women is that which in many states still deprives the mother of equal rights of guardianship over the children. This provision of the law often leads to oppression and injustice. It should go.

Why should any discrimination remain? The spirit of our laws simply insists upon good citizenship. That ideal is just as dear to the women as to the men, and the women are abundantly capable of fulfilling it. Our country grows better in every respect as the interests and opportunities of women are broadened and they live to greater usefulness and happiness.

The people who have been most frightened by the feminist movement are those who stood most in need of feeling its beneficial influence.

Give Wisconsin a hand for its manly courage in giving full recognition to women's rights.

We regard it as rather a significant fact that while the passage of the measure referred to has created considerable comment outside of the state there was scarcely a ripple within its borders. Equality for women is so thoroughly accepted in Wisconsin that the measure was taken for granted. We are glad that New York recognizes our "manly courage", but it seems that the enconium is just a bit exaggerated when applied to an action that to us, at least, presents itself as merely elementary justice. If being fair to women looks like a heroic deed to Gotham we feel more inclined to be sorry for Gotham than to stick out our own chests.

Meanest Man

CHICAGO insists that the meanest man prize be kept within her corporate limits. Her latest candidate for this "honor" has just been sentenced to the penitentiary for five years by Federal Judge Landis, after he had pleaded guilty to the charge of robbing the mails of disabled service men's compensation checks.

In passing sentence Judge Landis said: "It takes a man without any heart to rob a disabled war hero."

Murder is not the only crime that deserves the death penalty.

Kitty's Right

CATS right to look at a king was long ago recognized. Now, a cat's right to use her claws in a cat and dog fight is established by the supreme court of Massachusetts. Mrs. Fannie F. Goodwin sued a grocery because she was scratched while trying to protect her pet dog from the grocery cat. The court held that it was up to the dog to look out for himself, and that his owner could collect no damages because she "voluntarily exposed herself."

Real Menace

THE war which has been going on for months between the Kemalist Turks and the Greeks is an affair of much greater magnitude than the people of this country realize. If there were not so many other great events occurring throughout the world, this Turko-Greek war would be considered news of the first importance.

The great European powers are becoming alarmed lest the Turks under Kemal follow up the advantage they have already gained by making Constantinople and the Dardanelles untenable for allied troops and ships and thus upset the whole settlement of the Near East question.

There seems little doubt that the situation has developed into one of great seriousness. One of the incidents of the war which is rather amazing to us Americans is that 700,000 Greeks are already numbered among its victims. It is estimated that the total loss of life directly due to the war was at least a million up to July 1. And the end is not in sight.

Aviators

SINCE armistice day 251 American aviators have been killed in flight. For them there was not the glory that crowns the warrior who dies in battle. They went ahead, did each day's dangerous round of duty and they died doing the day's work.

And, in our opinion, the sacrifice of the fellow who thus gives his life while doing his job as best he knows, is no less to be honored than the sacrifice of him who laid down his life in the zeal, inspiration and glamor of battle.

They are the Heroes of the Daily Task.

Playing

WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN is reported to be wearing again the glittering uniforms that he loved to display when he was warlording the world. So the last of the autocrats for whom millions died is playing soldier, still feeding the vanity that wrecked him. It was the French philosopher-preacher, Pascal, who said: "Vanity is the great enemy of man; but those whom it hath betrayed never cease to honor it. Such is the folly of man."

CHURCH NEWS

Furnished by the Church News Association

Catholics of the United States have for the first time in history exceeded Catholics of Europe in amount of gifts of money to world missions. American Catholics have been able to do this because of relatively large gifts by Catholics of the archdioceses of Boston, New York and Philadelphia, each of which this year for the first time exceeded the gifts from the archdiocese of Lyons, France, which has heretofore held top place. The income of the society to which gifts go was $1,044,312 francs, or higher than ever before by more than 4,000,000 francs. Of this total Catholics of America gave more than half, or 1,143,027 francs, which is slightly more than was given by Catholics of all the rest of the world, including the great Catholic countries of Italy, Spain and France.

Congregationalists are rejoicing over the election at Los Angeles the other day of the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Burton to be general secretary of their National Council. Fear had been felt that local interests, which are active in places, might interfere at their council meeting in California, but a broad national policy has prevailed. The position is virtually the head of Congregationalism in America. The place was vacant through the dropping of Martha's Vineyard last summer of the former Congregational leader, the Rev. Dr. Horning. The new secretary is a native of Iowa and a brother of the Rev. Dr. H. L. Burton, successively president of Smith College and the University of Minnesota. He has held pastorates in Chicago and Minneapolis, and for a time was associated with the late Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden at Columbus. For some years he has been secretary of the Congregational Home Missionary society. He is regarded as a Christian statesman as well as missionary administrator.

The Rev. Dr. J. A. Fleming of Edinburgh, secretary of an Alliance of Presbyterian and Reformed Churches of the world, has arrived in this country for preliminary work in connection with an alliance meeting in Pittsburgh in September. According to Dr. Fleming, religious affairs in Europe, and especially in England and Scotland, are confronted by some grave conditions. There is a mad love of pleasure, to be gained chiefly from sports of all possible varieties. Sport mad is the description of it. Then there is a demand for higher wages and disinclination to do more but rather less work. Finally in Scotland the evening service in the churches has failed. The spiritual tone is low, and there is needed a revival of religion.

Presbyterians of the world, in an alliance which includes also the Reformed churches, will take up at Pittsburgh on September 16 three pressing questions. One of these will be the invitation of the Anglicans of England, of whom Episcopalians of the United States are a part, to consider with them and all other Christians, matters looking toward organic union of churches of the whole world. A second question is what to do with the women. The Presbyterian church of England decided, at its general assembly just held, to ordain them elders when they desire to be, and when it is desired by congregations that they serve as such. This ordination is not to preach, although the ordinal service is the same as for ministers. It is held that a later demand will be that they become actual ministers. English Presbyterians seem to have led all other bodies in this matter, or at least all principal bodies. The third concern at Pittsburgh will be unity. Efforts are making to bring all churches holding the Presbyterian system together into one great body, which if done would mean some 20,000,000 people scattered over the world. There are Presbyterians North and South in this country. Presbyterians United Free and Established in Scotland. Presbyterians in England, Reformed churches here of Dutch and German descent, besides many smaller bodies and many members in world mission fields. Relations between bodies are said to be improving, especially in Scotland. About sixty leaders are coming from Europe to share in the Pittsburgh discussions.

PUBLIC DEBATE

HELPING OURSELVES

Editor Tribune and Leader Press,
Dear Sir:—A few days ago you wrote an editorial as follows: "We have the federal farm loan banks, which give the industrious farmer of small capital his start. Home loan banks would be equally a good national investment. As soon as a majority of farmers own their farms, and a majority of city workers own their homes, America will be safe."

It seems to me the suggestion concerning home loan banks is vital and is the solution of city and community growth, now completely at a stand still so far as La Crosse is concerned. People do not realize that we have the sinews of the home loan bank in our existing institutions, but the trouble is that the first requirement—co-operation—is left out. We have two institutions in our city featuring in a half-hearted way that first requirement, namely, the building and loan associations, but they lack the necessary capital to supply the demand for home loans, probably because they do not push the investment feature of co-operation.

There is plenty of money in La Crosse belonging to wage earners to finance all the home building wanted, but it is invested in stock and bonds to carry on industries in other cities and states. In other words, the savings of the working people of La Crosse are withdrawn from home use and sent out of town through the savings departments of our six banks. An analysis of the published bank statements shows that they have on deposit in their savings departments over $5,000,000.

The statements also show that the banks are holding stock and bonds to the amount of nearly $4,000,000. The depositors are playing safe—at a low rate of income—because they have confidence in our banks, and the banks are playing safe with this money on which they are obligated to pay a certain interest by reinvesting it at a higher rate in seasoned securities.

Would it not be a better proposition to keep that money in La Crosse and lend it to home-builders on the monthly payment plan at six percent? Several things for the betterment of La Crosse would result from such a policy. The thrifty individual would be just as well secured, because his security would rest on La Crosse homes and the margin of security would constantly increase by reason of the monthly payments, while his increased earnings would be an incentive to greater savings.

The money would circulate in La Crosse through skilled mechanics, laborers and building material merchants, and give employment to home workers, instead of idleness. The new homes would be added to the tax duplicate and thus distribute the tax burdens over a larger number of taxpayers. There would be a more permanent basis for a more permanent and better citizenship, a more contented and thrifty working force, and less "Turnover" in our shop forces. No man, or community gets so much help as those who help themselves, and La Crosse has the opportunity right here to help herself if she will.

S. H. RUSSELL.

KEEPING BOOKS

Editor Tribune and Leader Press,
Dear Sir:—Discussing with a number of local citizens on their contributions for various charities has prompted the following response.

There are many ways of keeping books, there is the single entry, the double entry, there is the loose leaf system and other systems made to suit particular needs, but there is another system of keeping books that is of more vital interest to you than all the others mentioned.

It is the one of keeping books on your charity, good deeds etc. You have been telling about those donations to Y. M. C. A., Red Cross, Salvation Army, City Mission, your church, the orphanage, the firemen's fund, a poor crippled boy who needs a new shoe, and the orphaned boy who helped go to the University, the local baseball club, and numbers of other things.

Yes you think you have done a lot, true, but think for a moment, you had the means to do it with, you got your money's worth out of it, and it was all well spent, you only lost a fraction of the joy, by boasting somewhat of it. Didn't some one help you to be able to obtain the means you could do it with?

When a business man finds an investment profitable he invests more in it, so why isn't it good logical reasoning to invest more in those things that are more vital to human life.

Better throw away the books on your charity and forget about them, or you will be checking out, don't quit in the game of life.

When a man you see in trouble "help him out," don't ask his name, nor tell him yours, it won't make you any trouble, and his strength may double, help him out," yes "help him out."

The man possessed with charity has an asset worth more than money can buy, ready to lend assistance to the needy, in sickness, sorrow, or death, and help when there is friction in public, business or social affairs, or money when needed, a kind word, perhaps a reprimand where necessary, being always ready without expectation of any material return, what an honored name that will give you. Can you try it in these days of keen competition and strife, isn't it worth while; how many good Samaritans have we in this community ready to make a slight contribution daily for the benefit of the community, what a community that would be, wouldn't the spirit of it be contagious. Suppose we start without organization or pledge a new spirit re-generated, helping to settle local strife and friction, known as the "New La Crosse" with that object in view, forgetting our books, and when a man is in trouble "help him out."

Why not start now and have that as a principal and not a policy of our lives, and see what kind of community we would have.

Yours Truly,

A Subscriber.

"EQUAL OPPORTUNITY"

Galesville, Wis.

Editor, Tribune and Leader Press.

Dear Sir:—People who are either too lazy, too indifferent, or too prejudiced for a thorough study of labor problems often try to evade all responsibility by asserting that no such problem exists. They say that America offers equal opportunities for all, and that this is all anyone, including the laborer, should ask. There are actually people who firmly believe that if a man is working hard for $5.00 a day instead of doing nothing and drawing $1,000.00 a day, it is entirely his own fault. Through ability, thrift and hard work he, too, might become a millionaire.

Hard work, thrift and the development of one's ability are laudable and desirable virtues and usually bring at least a little reward. The possessor of these qualities is at an advantage over a person who is shiftless, ignorant and lazy; but to assert that the existence of opportunities relieves us of the necessity of doing anything collectively to better the living condition of the toilers, and to maintain that fortunes are acquired pretty much in proportion to skill and effort put forth is ridiculous for at least three reasons:

1. Opportunities are not equal. It is part of the labor program to bring about such equality.

2. Big fortunes do not necessarily follow big efforts. The element of chance is an important factor.

3. Great wealth for more than an extremely small percent of the population is physically and economically impossible. A general increase in the income of the average individual is better than a thousand to one chance of getting rich.

Opportunities are not equal. What we call opportunities is a complex condition consisting of various elements, most of which are beyond individual control. The theory that a boy who is born into a poverty-stricken home, stunted in physical and intellectual growth, by necessity driven to work at an early age, and thus deprived of all but a rudimentary education, has an equal opportunity with a boy who can easily afford to get an excellent education is too preposterous to require much discussion. They say that will-power will overcome all obstacles. Perhaps. But where is that tremendous will-power to come from? What is there about the condition of the poor workman's child that should create a greater will-power in him than that with which his more prosperous cousins are blessed? Poverty does not create will-power. It destroys it. Two men were both anxious to go from Chicago to Minneapolis. One would ride in a parlor car. The other had to walk. The latter would probably decide to stay at home.

Particularly during the last four years pulp, press and platform have been vied with one another in their praises of the ultra-rich. It has come to be practically an axiom in some quarters that man's not resources vary directly and precisely in accordance with his ability, effort and thrift. The millionaire is a superior being. The common laborer is a good-for-nothing. Here is a fair sample from a magazine boasting millions of readers a week: "People who lack the energy or skill required for making more than a meager income are inclined to envy those who through industry and self sacrifice have amassed large fortunes."

Assertions like this conveniently overlook the very important fact that every occupation permits of the acquisition of a job for which a certain amount of skill and energy are required. Good would you have to be at wood-splitting, ditch-digging, teaching and preaching in order to draw $100,000.00 a year; and yet some people in fact a great many people must dig ditches, split wood, preach and teach school. No industry and skill alone do not create millions. The element of chance must be taken into the reckoning. Tom and Harry, both equally wise and equally industrious, throw all their energy and means into various enterprises. Both are gamblers in the game of life. Tom wins. Harry loses. Tom is lauded as a captain of industry. Harry, with the same ability, is cast off into the social dumping grounds.

The assertion that a person is entitled himself to blame if he is a pauper instead of a millionaire may be convenient as an antidote to the highly advertised bolshevistic propaganda, but it will not be so convenient to defend it if carried to its logical conclusion. According to this theory, there would be nothing to hinder us from having 40,000,000 millionaires in this country if that lazy, shiftless, ignorant mob that till our soil, run our mills, and construct our buildings, bridges and canals were as industrious, economical and intelligent as those select few who manage to shake out a frugal existence on Fifth Avenue, Palm Beach—or Cuba at an income of $1,000,000 a year.

Enough has been said. The rest can safely be left to the readers' imaginations.

To the Editor of the La Crosse Tribune:

In this week's La Crosse Weekly Review, in heavy headlines, the following statement is made, "Ten million dollars deposited in La Crosse banks at 3 per cent and the City of La Crosse was forced to find an outside purchaser for its bonds paying 6 per cent." As a matter of fact these bonds were purchased by a syndicate made up of the Batavian National Bank, Laue, Piper & Jaffray and Wells-Dickey & Company and they were the highest bidders.

In fact it is stated in the article they made the only satisfactory bid, and the interest of the Batavian National Bank in this bid was largely to see that La Crosse sold these bonds so that the street improvement could be carried to completion.

This same syndicate, including the Batavian National Bank, bought the Logan and Washburn school bonds for which they also made the highest bid.

WOULDN'T THIS MAKE YOU SHIVER?

Suppose you were just leaving the church, after your wedding and a black cat walked out across your path. What would you do? Here it is happening. The newweds are Major G. Lloyd George, and his bride. The major is a son of the British premier.

bought the Logan school bonds which were issued in April, 1920, when the bond market was even worse than it is at the present time and when only one outside institution made a bid for the bonds. The Batavian National Bank paid for these bonds and resold them at a total profit of less than $100.00. The market for money at that time was strong 8 per cent and any amount of good securities could have been bought to net the bank that amount, but in order to insure the starting of the school building program, the bank bought these bonds at what was then a high price.

When a local financial institution not only bids for all these issues of bonds, but bids the highest price for them, how absurd it is for a local paper to say that the City of La Crosse was forced to find an outside purchaser for its bonds. And it may be of interest to know that $50,000 of the Logan School bonds and $82,000 of the Logan and Washburn school bonds were resold to local investors, the Logan bonds at practically no profit and the Logan and Washburn bonds at a profit of one per cent, or $820.00, to the local member of the syndicate.

I feel that the Batavian National Bank not only paid a better price for the city bonds than would have been possible to realize if they had not been a bidder, but they have given the bonds a wide distribution locally and given the public an opportunity, if they wish to invest in a high class security at a high rate of interest.

Not From Patients

Onalaska, Wis. July 14, 1921.
Editor, Tribune and Leader Press.

La Crosse, Wis.
Dear Sir:—Wish to inform you that your publication of Saturday, July 3, in the La Crosse Tribune, in regard to the theft of money and clothing, from patients, by Armand Marcedee is a false report. The money and clothing was stolen from employees and not from patients.

However, each patient has a locker for their personal belongings, for which they carry a key. Am sure if you realized the difficulty, the expense, sometimes, to persuade hysterical patients to enter a sanatorium, for their own benefit and the public as well, you would have this report corrected at once. However, it will be very much appreciated by myself and others interested in Oak Forest Sanatorium.

Respectfully,

LAURA BELL, R. N.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

(Prepared for the Batavian National Bank by W. E. Walker.)

Regarding future costs of the important building materials, the situation relative to lumber and timber as a major item in this list appears most clearly defined.

Timber prices in this country have been peculiar over a long period in that although they sometimes remain at a standstill they never decline. Of course, it is not true of lumber. Lumber has been coming down at a somewhat rapid pace and most economists are of the opinion that the bottom in this particular pit is being neared. Despite declines in lumber prices, however, timber prices refuse to slump.

The reason for the refusal of timber prices to fluctuate is that timber in this country is constantly increasing in real value. The fact that the United States is cutting wood out of its forests three or four times as fast as it is being grown is only one reason for the value of timber and timber lands keeping up so consistently.

Perhaps the most important reason for timber prices' steady progress upward is that the book value of timber has ever been on the increase. An important consideration in computing the value of this raw material is that while it is being grown, the land on which it stands cannot be used for other purposes, unlike conditions under which other raw materials are developed or mined. During all the years of timber's growth, carrying charges grow heavier. Taxes accumulate year by year, the total interest charged off on the investment grows, and fire protection costs are an additional expense. The realized upon is in the enhancement in timber values. The golden days of wholesale deforestation being passed, these considerations come into their own as important factors. With this steady upward trend in timber prices, it is natural to expect a strong influence manifesting itself against any downward change in lumber prices. As a general thing, when lumber prices drop, timber prices stand still. When lumber prices rise, timber prices are quick to react in the same direction.

During the past year lumber prices have been rapidly declining due to a temporarily diminished demand during the periods of decreased building operations and employment. Timber prices have accordingly been about stationary.

Economists are agreed pretty well that with improved conditions in a period of readjustment coming, building will again pick up. With homes needed in all parts of the country, it appears to be only a question of how long it will be before building operations do increase materially. An upward reaction in lumber prices can be counted upon as soon as the building industries revive and there again comes an active demand for lumber.

With this increased demand, the value of timber and timber lands will probably take a more noticeable spurt in accord with the general upward tendency in the field. Timber values have stood still before but not for long. An increase in the demand for lumber and a resultant rise in lumber prices invariably result in a rise in timber values.

FINANCIAL SERVICE STATION

NOTE: Send in any questions regarding any money matter or check and their application to your particular affairs, about banking or trust company business, about business conditions in general, to The Financial Service Station, care The Tribune and Leader Press, and questions will be answered by the bank on behalf of the Batavian National Bank.

The other day we had an argument with an employee of a local bank over the question of whether or not a check made out to Cash and signed need to be endorsed by the maker on the back of the check before it can be cashed at a bank. Can you help us out on this point?

Answer: As a matter of the legality of the transaction, the check made out to Cash and signed by the maker would not have to be endorsed by him again. His liability for the amount of the instrument is established by his signing it, and endorsing it does not increase his liability in any way.

However, from the standpoint of the bank teller, there is another angle to the situation. It is convenient for a teller to make out a check to Cash, if the maker of the check is a stranger, and the teller has the maker endorse it in his presence, he may catch the maker's signature. Having the maker endorse him may be used as a precautionary measure by the careful teller.

Dear Sir: For the past two years I have been following European Exchange very closely. What is the outlook for Europe? Is it better than the next six months and what are the highest factors to watch which may affect the Exchange rates? M. L. S.

Answer: European banks and this country are not agreed on the outlook for European Exchange. It would seem that the settlement of European political problems will precede the restoration to normal of the purchasing power of Europe's money. Adjusting of an equilibrium in Russia and the continued progress that may be made on German reparation payments are important factors which will affect the economic conditions of these countries and indirectly, their rates of exchange.

Dear Sir: I don't know whether this is along the line of things you might answer or not, but I've run and heard it stated often that if a merchant increases the percentage of his advertising, he really decreases it. Can you explain this paradox?

M. F.

Answer: If a merchant increases the percentage of his advertising based on this year's sales, the percentage of the appropriation to next year's sales will be decreased because of the increased advertising. That, I believe, is the fact.

This can perhaps be made clearer by the use of a simple example. Suppose this year's sales were $1,000 and the merchant decided to spend 5 per cent of this year's sales for next year's advertising, or $50. Then suppose that next year's sales were to increase to $2,000 partly because of this advertising. Next year the $50 of advertising expense would thus be 2 1/2 per cent of sales instead of 5 per cent. So increasing the advertising expense to 5 per cent of this year's sales really meant decreasing its percentage to 2 1/2 per cent of next year's sales because of the increase in sales due to advertising. This rule usually holds true where the advertising is carried on judiciously, although not, of course, to so marked a degree as in the example stated.

Dear Sir: Is the public again taking part in stock exchange dealings very much?

K. E.

Answer: The professional nature of the selling for the last few weeks is indicative of the lack of public participation in the market movements to any marked degree.

Slot Machine Sells Milk

A London man who retails large quantities of milk to people in the neighborhood of his store has an automatic vending machine which waits on customers without any attention from him except to see that the tank is kept full of milk and that the ice is provided to keep it cool. A young woman was being shown through the locomotive works by one of the young office men, and displayed great wonderment and awe at sight of the machinery. "And what is that big thing over there?" she asked. "That's a locomotive boiler."

She puckered her brows. "And what do they boil locomotives for?" "To make the locomotive tender."

OCEAN WATERWAY PARTY ENDS ITS TRIP AT QUEBEC

Americans Convinced of Feasibility of St. Lawrence Project

TRIP HAS BROUGHT BROADER UNDERSTANDING SAYS LEWROD

Badger Senator and Madison Man Address Gathering

QUEBEC, Canada—America's first day's ocean way expedition, starting at Niagara Falls and extending over 100 miles of waterway, the proposed great international lakes to ocean route, came to a close in the quaint old city of Quebec on Friday.

Here, as at Niagara, Toronto and Montreal, Canadian hospitality was without bounds. As the Americans started homeward Friday night, vessels in the harbor thundered farewell, and the Cape Elizabeth whistles answered back. "This has been a trip of study rounded out by the first one country makes over a distinguished deputation from another country."

Inspect New Bridge
Friday's sightseeing included inspection of the new Quebec cantilever bridge, the harbor, the city, the plains of Abraham and Chateau Frontenac high above the city, and overlooking Dufferin terrace and the board walk. Summed up, the trip brought home these points: First—The United States and Canada no longer doubt the feasibility of the St. Lawrence project, and are ready to co-operate to see this huge undertaking through. Second—The west is for canalization of the St. Lawrence for the development of transportation. New England is coming to favor it for power development.

Third—Representatives of the United States and Canada believe the ocean waterway can be financed by means of bonds guaranteed by both governments, with the hydro electric power developed paying the cost, not one dollar to be added to taxation. Senator Irvine L. Lenroot and Magnus Swenson, Madison, Wis., addressed the closing meeting on board Cape Henry as the party steamed toward Quebec.

East Should be West
"There has been too much of the feeling that east is east and west is west," said Senator Lenroot. "The time has come when the east shall not be east, and the west shall not be west, but the east shall be west and west shall be east. This trip has gone far to establish a broader understanding among us."

"The industrial future of New England and New York depends absolutely upon development of the St. Lawrence. From a transportation standpoint, the waterway project is quite as important to New England as it is to the west. I am going to admit to the delegation from New England that completion of the St. Lawrence canalization will divert traffic from New York and New England, but when prosperity returns we will be praying that some way may be found to divert traffic."

"The congestion we had a little over a year ago will come back unless there is some relief. Completion of the open way to the sea will relieve the transportation of New England and will release thousands upon thousands of coal cars."

See No Difficulty
"Realizing the present condition of the treasury at Washington, I know we ought not add any more burdens than are absolutely necessary to carry on existing needs of the government, but I am sure the St. Lawrence project can be financed without appropriating one dollar from the treasury, except a nominal sum for detailed service. I do not think there will be the slightest difficulty between Canada and the United States in working out a plan of action which will pay off the cost of the waterways in 50 years or in perhaps 30 years."

"This great thing is coming. Whatever opposition exists could no more prevent it than it could more back the Atlantic. It is not a question of completing this project, but when it shall be done. If you have been convinced of this I ask you to make known the facts when you get home."

Wants Lake Ports
Mr. Swenson, who is president of the Norwegian American Steamship Line, said it was his ambition of his life to have one of his ships poke its nose into one of Wisconsin's ports on Lake Michigan. Mr. Swenson said one-half of the company he represented was American owned, and that the ships of this line would be flying the stars and stripes as soon as the United States government made that possible. He spoke with much feeling concerning the opportunity and privileges of an American citizen, and said foreign born Americans probably had a little keener appreciation of those opportunities and privileges than native Americans.

Members of the American expedition started back to Montreal Friday night and will board trains for home sometime on Saturday.

DENY WRIT TO REFER REPEALED LAWS TO VOTERS OF DAKOTA

PIERRE, S. D.—A writ of mandamus sought by R. O. Richards of Huron, to compel Secretary of State Burkhardt to file five petitions to refer to the people five sections of the state primary law repealed by the late legislature, was denied by the state supreme court in a decision handed down late Saturday.

The court ruled that the secretary of state complied with the law which places the time limit at 90 days after adjournment of the legislature.

MACMILLAN PARTY SETS SAIL FOR UNEXPLORED REGION IN BAFFIN LAND

WISCASSET, Maine.—Donald B. MacMillan and six adventurer followers sailed down the Sheepscot river Saturday bound for Baffin Land. They were cheered by two thousand friends and admirers, including Governor Baxter, the explorer's classmate at Bowdoin college, as the little schooner Bowdoin left the wharf.

An attempt to map Baffin Land, the vast Arctic island southwest of Greenland, whose 1,500 miles of unexplored western coastline is as much a mystery today as when the English navigator, William Baffin, announced its discovery in 1616, is the main objective of the MacMillan expedition. The tiny 125-ton schooner Bowdoin, which carries the party north was built at East Boothbay, Maine.

She was named for MacMillan's alma mater, has auxiliary power and embodies all the essentials for resisting terrific ice packs. The crew consists of six men. The vessel is of the Gloucester fisherman knockabout type, sheathed with ironwood, eighty-seven feet long, with a draught of nine and one-half feet. Crude oil engines capable of developing sixty-horsepower are included in her equipment, as well as 2,000 gallons of fuel oil and 500 gallons of kerosene. The Bowdoin also carries stores and provisions sufficient to last her crew two years.

At Pole With Peary
The head of the expedition was Peary's chief lieutenant on the last successful dash to the North Pole in 1909. He has made eight voyages into the Arctic regions. According to MacMillan's plans, he intends to reach Baffin Land about August 26 and establish a camp south of the entrance to the dangerous Fury and Hecla Strait, where the ships of Captains Peary and Lyall, seekers of the northwest passage, were blocked a century ago. The location is 160 miles north of the Arctic Circle and 700 miles south of Etah, Greenland. It is not far from the point where MacMillan's Crocker Land expedition passed the four winters of 1913-14-15 and 16. On that occasion the expedition was once reported lost and two relief expeditions were sent out for it, but MacMillan finally returned. He announced that Crocker Land was not "land," as believed possible by Peary, but an ice mirage.

Penetrate Interior
During the winter of 1921-22, attempts will be made to explore the coast of Baffin Land and the following summer an effort will be made to penetrate the interior where, according to Eskimo tales, there exists one of the richest and most alluring fields of research in the frozen north. The island is said to have great mineral deposits and to possess high mountains and beautiful lakes which have never been seen by white men.

The region is believed to be an immense breeding ground for water fowl, whose nesting habits will be the subject of study, while the program of the scientist of the expedition also calls for field work in zoology, botany, geology, meteorology and terrestrial magnetism. Special observations will be taken of the magnetic pole which was located first by James Ross in 1830 on the further side of the Boothia peninsula, not far from MacMillan's proposed winter camp. An attempt will also be made to circumnavigate Baffin Land. In the event of a serious mishap to the Bowdoin, the party plans to retreat by dog sleds to Fort Churchill, a trading post at the foot of Hudson Bay, and thence return to civilization by way of northwestern Canada.

Son of Sea Captain
MacMillan was born in Provincetown, Mass., November 10, 1874, the son of a Cape Cod sea captain. He was graduated from Bowdoin college in 1898 and took up postgraduate work at Harvard in 1910-12. Before becoming an explorer he was a teacher and public school principal. In addition to accompanying Peary on his last famous trip north, he was a member of the Cabot Labrador expedition in 1910 and as previously referred to, the leader of the Crocker Land expedition three years later. In 1911 and 1912 he made ethnological studies of the Eskimos of Labrador. He is unmarried.

KINNEARS RETURN FROM DELIGHTFUL MICHIGAN OUTING
Dr. and Mrs. R. M. I. Kinnears returned Sat. after spending three weeks motoring and fishing in Michigan. Dr. and Mrs. Kinnears went directly to Dugout, Mich., where they were guests for a short time of their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Hale Stow, and were joined there by their daughter, Miss Anne Kinnears, who has been teaching the past year at South, Wash. From Dugout Dr. and Mrs. Kinnears and Miss Kinnears went to Tallot, Mich., and were guests for a week of James and Raymond Andrews. They then left for the Soo, accompanied by Messrs. Andrews. At the Soo Dr. Kinnears joined a party of top professional men in a private boat with four Indian guides going to Lorna Bay, one hundred miles north of the Soo, the Andrews' lumber camp. There the men spent a week camping and fishing, making wonderful catches of trout, and will have exciting tales to tell for months to come. James Andrews joined the men's party and Raymond Andrews found with the ladies, who visited Marquette, Manistee, Iron Mountain and other cities and then went to Escanaba to join the doctor and James Andrews. The Kinnears' motor trip covered about two thousand miles. They were guests not only at Tallot, but during their stay in Michigan of Messrs. Andrews. Miss Kinnears remained for a short visit at the home of her sister.

CARLOAD OF NOTED PRODUCT OFFERED IN BIG SALE MONDAY

Barron Company Opens Special Sale of Congoleum Rugs and Floor Covering

A sales event of unusual magnitude for La Crosse is announced by the E. J. Barron company, opening Monday, in which a full carload of Congoleum floor coverings will be offered, including rugs and yard goods from this well known nationally advertised line.

Mr. J. K. Koenen, the manufacturer's representative, has arrived in the city and will be here all week during the sale to assist J. K. Verhulst, manager of the third floor rug and drapery department of the Barron company. Upon his arrival Mr. Koenen declared that to his knowledge the Congoleum manufacturers are the only concern of national scope that is at present overproducing its production. With their mills operating on full time, Mr. Koenen said, the company is still $1,500,000 behind on its orders.

"Although Congoleum is a standard line generally sold at a fixed retail price," said Mr. Verhulst Saturday, "by purchasing a car of it we have been able to make special arrangements with the makers to price it for this sale at a very attractive figure. We have a full selection of sizes and patterns to place in the sale."

MOST OF THEM BACKING BADGER IN HIS ATTACK

The bill provides a duty of only 2 cents a pound on coconut oil. Mr. Beck said, "In my opinion there should be a duty of from 8 to 10 cents a pound on this product as its importation bears in a vital way upon the dairy industry of the state. The importations of coconut oil have amounted to as high as 300,000,000 pounds a year."

"This product is being used to displace butter fat. Although it contains none of the vital nutritive qualities of butter fat, it is being used more and more as a substitute for the dairy product. In an indirect way, I believe it is threatening the existence of the 3,000,000 dairy cows in the state."

Beck Fights Filled Milk
Mr. Beck is waging an active campaign for elimination of the so-called "beats" or filled-milk industry thriving in the state. In that industry, coconut oil is used as a substitute for butter fat with the result that the product may be marketed much cheaper, according to Mr. Beck.

An agreement was reached by the supporters of legislation before congress to eliminate this industry to support both the Volz bill before the house agricultural committee and the Beck-Fordney bill before the house ways and means committee. The Volz bill, sponsored by Edward Volz, of Sheboygan, would bring filled milk under the same act while Beck-Fordney bill would tax the product out of existence. Following the introduction of the bill by Mr. Beck, it was reintroduced by Representative Fordney, of Michigan, chairman of the house ways and means committee.

Charles W. Holman, who has been identified with Wisconsin farmers and whose home is in Madison, is now in Washington as secretary of the National Milk Producers Federation supporting the legislation to drive out the filled milk industry.

Wants Farm Credit
B. C. Pommeroy, president of the Equity Society of Wisconsin, testified before the agricultural commission, a congressional committee investigating the condition of the farmer, on Thursday regarding the plight of the farmers in the state. Mr. Pommeroy told the committee that the inability of the farmers to obtain credit was menacing the agricultural industry of the state.

He brought out the difficulty being experienced by the farmers in their efforts in co-operative enterprises. The co-operative stores, he said, were being discriminated against.

Another matter for which he came to Washington was to obtain a man to take charge of the new dairy department of the society that is being organized. His purpose is to get the best man possible.

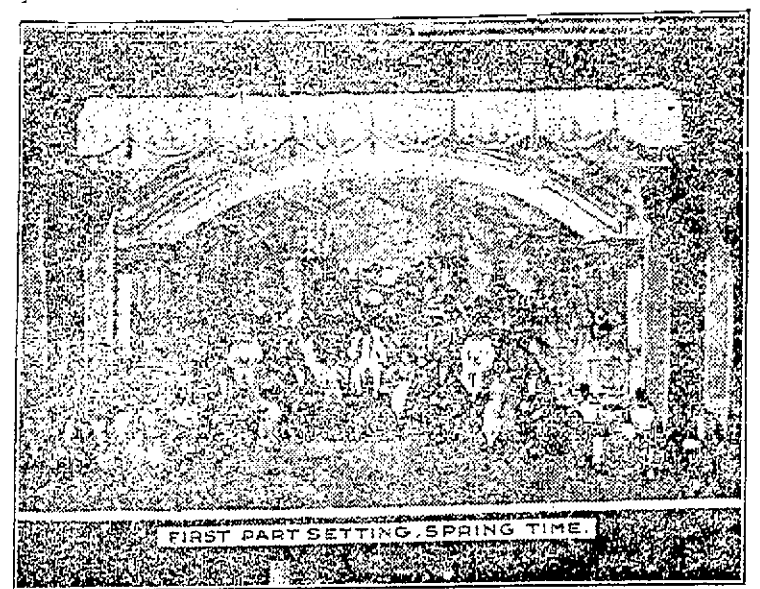

Charles A. Lyman, of Madison and Rhinelander, also testified before the commission. Mr. Lyman, who maintains a farm in Rhinelander, appeared as the secretary of the National Farm Bureau Federation which has its headquarters in Washington and represents farmers' organizations in all parts of the country.

The investigation, incidentally, is the result of efforts by Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, who sponsored the resolution providing the necessary authority. The junior senator, who is now with the international joint commission investigating the St. Lawrence waterways project, is expected back in Washington on this week end.

Adolphus P. Nelson, of Grantsburg, is also making the trip, and may return with the senator.

Mrs. Robert M. LaFollette, wife of Senator LaFollette, with other members of the executive committee of the Women's World Disarmament committee, are preparing an appeal to President Harding to have a woman among the representatives of the United States in the forthcoming conference on disarmament and the far eastern situation. The chairman of the committee is Miss Emma Wedel, who was actively identified with the Women's National party and the fight for woman suffrage.

The committee was highly pleased at the decision of the president to call the conference, according to Mrs. LaFollette, and now hope that he will make the conference mark, among other things, the recognition of women's part in international affairs.

One prominent figure of Wisconsin who is expected to be enlisted in the support of this country at the conference is Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, who ran for the senate on the democratic platform in the last campaign. By reason of his service as minister to China, Mr. Reinsch is looked upon in Washington as a leading expert on far eastern affairs.

Senator LaFollette is planning to appear before the senate committee investigating the cure of disabled veterans of the world war, to present the situation at Resthaven, the hospital at Waukesha. The senator's purpose is only to present to the committee the reports on both sides of the dispute without any efforts to make a comprehensive statement, it was stated. The matter has stirred up considerable excitement in the state, and it is his object, to have it thoroughly going into by the senate committee.

Mr. and Mrs. LaFollette are giving up their home of more than ten years at 3320 14 street in Washington and will take up their residence about the first of the month at Eighteenth street and Kilbourne road. The LaFollette residence on Sixteenth street has been closely identified with Wisconsin in the capital for many years. It was there that the senior senator resided when he made his campaign for the presidency in 1912.

John M. Nelson, of Madison, announced the appointment of Robert Ford to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. He has another appointment to make, and expects to make the selection within a few weeks.

One appointment to Annapolis from Wisconsin went begging this year. It was in the hands of Mr. Beck who said he could find no one who desired it at this time.

Paper in circulation in Germany increased during 1920 from 50,000,000 marks to more than 80,000,000,000 marks.

RIVER STEAMERS FOR MISSISSIPPI NEAR COMPLETION

Belated Machinery for Towboats is Arriving and Being Installed

ONE TRIP IS EXPECTED BEFORE NAVIGATION CLOSES

Steel Barges all Ready for Use on Upper River

That the first of August will see the delivery of the first of the new type of river steamers designed to tow barges of freight on the upper river, is the prediction of Colonel Burgess of the United States engineer's office in Rock Island.

Completion of the boats has been delayed by the failure of the machinery to arrive. It had been expected to have all of the boats ready this fall, but the indications are that only a few will be completed in time for use this year, and that the first of the boats completed will be able to make one trip on the upper river to demonstrate their effectiveness.

The steel barges for handling of the freight are ready and have been delivered. The hulls of the steamers are in the water and all work has been completed on most of them with the exception of installing the engines and machinery.

The boats are of the same type as the present stern wheeled river craft, with the exception that they are to be more powerful, and that there will be no upper decks, except for the accommodation of the crews.

The new steamers delivered this fall are expected to make trial trips to St. Paul and St. Louis and if they prove what is expected, it is thought next season will see many boats back on the river in freight trade.

U. S. PAYS BRITISH CLAIM FOR WRATIME TRANSPORTATION

WASHINGTON — Despite Great Britain's debt of $4,500,000,000 to this country, payment of $22,688,352 has been made by the American government to the British ministry of shipping in settlement of a claim against the war department, treasury officials said Saturday. The payment was made, officials added, pursuant to an opinion by Attorney General Daugherty.

The British claim was for transportation services arising out of the war with Germany, and the payment, it was explained, constitutes final settlement between the war department and the British ministry of shipping of all claims of either party, against the other for transportation.

BUSINESS BETTER IN THE CITY THAN IN MANY OTHER POINTS

Local Bankers Take Optimistic View of Conditions in Gateway City

La Crosse is getting through the readjustment period in much better shape than many other cities and will pass the crisis with comparatively little suffering, in the opinion of local bankers and manufacturers.

While it is true that the industrial depression which has spread over the country has hit this city, and some classes of manufacturers have been forced to close their plants because of lack of buying orders, a majority of the factories in La Crosse are operating at least on part time or at a certain percentage of capacity. Added to this is a large amount of construction work, including three new school houses and sewer construction and street repair work giving employment to several hundred men. In a time of great industrial depression La Crosse today gives the appearance of being a city which is going steadily ahead.

Bank Deposits Up

This is borne out by bank deposits, which are keeping up to the high mark reached early in the year, and in some banks, increasing, and this at a time when substantial withdrawals might be expected. La Crosse banks have not increased their loan rate to customers above seven per cent during the readjustment period, and hope of easier rates next spring or summer is held out. Meeting all demands of their customers, La Crosse banks have been able, in addition, to handle quantities of commercial paper during the year.

Phone Addition Started

The La Crosse Telephone company has started work on the construction of a $10,000 addition to its exchange building at Fifth and Jay streets, to accommodate additional exchange equipment required to care for increasing business. The equipment to be installed will cost over $50,000.

The output of the La Crosse Rubber company's plants, the largest in this city, for the first six months of the year equalled that for the same period last year.

The National Gauge and Equipment company, which manufactures automobile accessories, operated at sixty per cent of capacity in June and its business is keeping up to a healthy rate.

While the plant of the Listman Mill company is closed here temporarily, because of labor troubles, a resumption of activities in the fall is anticipated within six months or a year.

CABARET SHOW IS THE JUBILEE GIRLS RIVIERA OFFERING

"At the Cabaret" is the title of the musical comedy to be given by the "Jubilee Girls" at the Riviera today, on Monday and Tuesday, in addition to the Priscilla Dean-Lon Chaney picture, "Outside the Law." The musical show will be "The Schemers." In "At the Cabaret," Levy (Max Golden) and Cohen (Jimmy Deoley) play the roles of sailors who land in the cabaret and try to spend all their money in ten minutes. When their money is gone they are in danger of being tossed out into the street. Then Easy (Conrad Hipp) gets on the job. He has been helping the sailors spend their money and having a swell time. Levy, Cohen and Easy break a statue of the gladiator and have to pose as statues to escape. Before fleeing they try to steal a loaf of bread and ruin everything in the place. They end up in jail. It is one burly-burly show that has a laugh a second. The song numbers Sunday are: Lillian Dessert, "I'm an Agitated Mama Looking for Mr. Delectable Pie," Mabel Spencer, "Life, Lie, Love," Connie Hipp, "Mimi," Harry Powers, "My Baby's Arms," Jimmy Deoley, "Parody on the Ford Machine."

"OUTSIDE THE LAW", PREMIER CROOK PLAY, AT RIVIERA MONDAY

Lon Chaney

Priscilla Dean

Priscilla Dean, queen of cinema crookdom, appears in the greatest characterization of her career in the melodrama of the underworld, "Outside the Law," at the Riviera Monday and Tuesday.

As "Silly Moll," Madden, daughter and pal of a notorious but reformed San Francisco crook, she finds honesty irresistible and seizes an opportunity to revenge herself on society after her father has been railroaded to prison. Even more of an outcast than most women, Silly Moll is wise with the wisdom of women, who live by wit, sweet with the heady sweetness of dry wine and with a heart as hard as it is pure. After her daring crime coup, in which a banker is found and gagged to the music of his own dance orchestra and robbed of a $500,000 necklace within an hour, Silly Moll and her male confederate "hide out" in a Knott Hill apartment. During the long months of their voluntary imprisonment a great chance comes to the soul of Silly Moll, through the influence of a double life led from the next door apartment. "Outside the Law," as a Universal Jewel, at an expenditure of a quarter of a million dollars, and the result is said to be one of the most notable crime dramas of the decade, pictorially and historically. Lon Chaney, acknowledged the foremost character on the screen, in two roles of astonishing dissimilarity: Wheeler Oakman, a crook with the instincts of a gentleman; Ralph Lewis as the father, E. A. Warren as the Chinese philosopher, Wilton Taylor as the police inspector, Melbourne Macdonald and Little Stanley Goodrich are the other principals in the cast.

PUMPING STATION CAPACITY TESTED DURING HOT SPELL

Record Days Shown in Furnishing Water to Thirsty and Parched City

During the present hot weather the capacity of the city pumping station has almost been reached in furnishing water for sprinkling thousands of lawns and cooling the heated air.

The consumption of water in La Crosse in the last two weeks has averaged 4,122,580 gallons per day, over 500,000 gallons more than the average daily rate, according to figures furnished by P. B. Kimball, superintendent of the pumping station. July 12 has the record so far, with 6,682,160 gallons pumped on that day, and June 20 and July 1 are next in order with 5,880,810 and 4,457,610 gallons respectively.

"There is no danger of a shortage of the water supply," said City Engineer George P. Bradish. "However, people should be a little careful not to waste the water, and they should also remember that when a fire alarm rings all sprinkling, according to a city ordinance, must be stopped."

The muddy condition of the water at times was attributed by Mr. Bradish to the high pressure in the mains when such a large amount of water is being used.

"We are not pumping any muddy water from the wells," he declared. "But there is still some mud caked on the inside of the pipes, which was deposited there when we were getting our water from the Mississippi river. In normal times this mud is not disturbed, but when the pressure

The greatest amount of water is used between the hours of 5 and 7 p. m. The rate of consumption has been as high as seven and three-quarter million gallons per day during these hours, according to Mr. Kimball. He also stated that since last Monday morning the pumping station has been operating continuously for twenty-four hours per day without a single shutdown.

La Crosse is using more water than the city of Madison, the record there being 5,047,000 gallons per day, which has been surpassed here by over a million and a half gallons. The water rate is slightly cheaper here than in Madison, declared Mr. Bradish. A garden hose can be used there at a cost of about ten cents an hour.

"In a good many cities they have found it necessary to shut off the water for sprinkling during certain hours of the day," said Mr. Bradish. La Crosse is lucky to have a good pumping system so that there is plenty of water for everybody, even during the hottest weather."

Peak of the Load

It comes at the breakfast, luncheon and dinner hour. The demand is sudden, tremendous.

"Peak of the load," says the gas engineer. "What a convenience," comments the housewife. And both refer to the biggest service problem in the public utility business.

To get gas service when, where, and how you want it without warning, without telephoning for it, means that we must have "peak of the load" equipment to meet "peak of the load" demands.

This equipment is costly. It takes a lot of money to keep it in good condition, ready at all times to serve you. And the maximum number of men must be employed to operate it, whether the call comes or not.

Vital things, these. And they must be paid for if you are to get the gas service you demand, in the way you demand it.

Think it over.

The Walrus

The time has come the Walrus said
To talk of many things

Of cabbages and kings.

(By C. A. W.)

This is the open season for bathing beach parties, automobile accidents and pines. In other words, all of La Crosse is on the move when not tied down by work, seeking relief from the heat and pursuing such sport as a country wonderfully endowed by nature affords. It must be a source of continual gratification to Bath-house Gus Keller, who caused the public bath to be established when he was a member of the council fifteen years ago, to watch the development of swimming as a healthful summer pastime in the pool at the far end of the wagon bridge. Thousands of men and women, boys and girls, have learned to swim since the public bath came into existence here. But I have a hunch that Mr. Keller, if a member of the council at this time, would long since have introduced a resolution to extend the size and facilities of the public bath so that, on those hot days, the patrons of the place would not so closely resemble a bunch of sardines packed into a box. The father of waters is a mighty big stream, and the fish would not object if the limits of the bathing beach should be extended a hundred yards or more down or up stream.

Despite the campaign conducted by the Automobile Club of Western Wisconsin and this family journal to induce motorists to exercise ordinary precautions in meeting other cars on the road, the police records show about the usual number of car accidents every week, and there are many others that the cops and newspapermen don't hear about. While drivers under the influence of moonshine are responsible for a large majority of the bad auto accidents in these parts, there are many drivers of cars who are careless, dashing over city and country roads at a speed which is dangerous for passengers and hazardous for themselves as well. I don't suppose there is any cure for some of these speedsters except a good bump. I don't claim to be a prophet, but history has proven that all reckless drivers get their eventual. It may be in the police court or circuit court or hospital or morgue. But it's a clutch it will be one of the four. Reckless driving is one of the things that one cannot get away with forever.

Now that we have made passing reference to subjects which seem to be much in the public mind during this summer playtime, we'll take a little jaunt into the country—the best country in all the world, natives proudly acclaim. The lure of the open has always found its way into men's hearts, but the inventions and conveniences of the present day are making it more and more practical to answer that call. If one has no auto stream and electric railroad carry one within easy reaching distance of dozens of attractive picnic grounds or fishing holes in these parts. Or one may walk across the bridge and find in Pettibone park for more excitement and fresh air and sport and freedom than any big-city park that we know of. To appreciate the pleasures of this island park, one should stand around the auto touring parties which camp out in the park just north of the bath house and hear them rave about the comforts and scenic beauties of the island. As a summer playground we have attractions here which some big cities would give millions to possess, and they are as free as the air we breathe. Let's use them and be happy.

I understand that J. Allan Simpson, who became well known to La Crosse people during the session of United States court last winter, has entered into a law partnership with one Thorwald M. Beck in Racine and has already hung out his shingle. As chief of the federal prohibition agents in the western district of Wisconsin under the Wilson regime, J. Allan scored a coup in the terms of court here over which Judge Landis presided. The Chicago judge, I am told, regarded Simpson as one of the best witnesses who had ever testified in his court. Holding down a disagreeable job, J. Allan nevertheless made many friends in this community during his two months' stay hereabouts, and also a few enemies of the sort that every prosecuting officer annexes during his tenure of office. But this need not prevent a host of friends here wishing Mr. Simpson the best of luck in his professional venture.

One of the important bills passed by the legislature, local knights of the 25th reg. was a measure requiring Wisconsin inn-keepers hereafter keep posted in a conspicuous place a schedule of rates charged for rooms, use of each room and the price charged per day for a single individual, is required to be placed in the hotel lobby.

Every man who drives a gasoline chugger in these parts must be impressed with the great improvement in the street of this burgh accomplished as a result of the expenditure of that $125,000 voted by the common council. The rejuvenation of the old macadam streets, some of which were regarded as worn out, is nothing short of remarkable. It took us a long time to find the way, but we have finally learned what can be done with a few cars of gravel and a few

NORRIS BACHELLER TELLS OF PART LA GROSSE MEN PLAYED

Local Politician and Businessman Appears in Interesting Role as Historian

(Editor's Note.—N. C. Bacheller, former La Crosse postmaster and alderman, well known politician and businessman interested in many big projects, appears in a new role—that of historian—in the accompanying letter. His description of some of the stirring events which marked Custer's last stand and references to the part that La Crosse men took in the terrible battle will be found particularly interesting.)

BY N. C. BACHELLER
HUNTER, Mont.—I went down to the Custer battlefield on the 25th of June, the 45th anniversary of the battle fought there in which Custer and his men were wiped out. There was a great attendance. I never saw so many automobiles together at one time before. It is said there were 2,500 and that the attendance on the field was 10,000.

There was a sham battle—reproduction of the battle—staged between the Crow Indians and 120 whites representing Custer's command, and soldiers who had been in Indian battles said it looked a good deal like the real thing. I am sending you the first account of Custer's battle as it appeared in the Bismarck Tribune of July 6, 1876, which I have never seen in print before, also some pictures taken from another paper, and which account was brought in by Abraham Lincoln by the steamboat Far West which was up the Big Horn river within fifteen miles of the battlefield and which brought back to Ft. Lincoln the body of Custer and also the wounded and sick, and which arrived at Ft. Lincoln ten days after the battle.

La Crosse Man Named
The Kellogg mentioned in this account was Mark Kellogg of La Crosse who was a telegraph operator in the old Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph company's office in the 60's and which stood where the Tri-State Ice Cream company's plant now stands. Kellogg's father kept the Kellogg house on the corner of Second and Pearl streets where the Hotel Law now stands and it was a two-story frame building with a basement into which you went down about three steps from the street, the office and bar being in the basement. The name of the hotel was afterward changed to the Albion House and it was burned down in the spring of 1867.

Was Newspaperman
Kellogg was sent out with the Custer expedition by James Gordon Bennett of the New York Herald and no doubt also represented the Bismarck Tribune on the side as claimed in the article. Kellogg left two children who were taken care of by a relative, Miss Lillie Robinson, who lived in a large frame house on the corner of Fifth and Main streets, where Hoescher's drug store now stands, and Bennett sent her $50 a month for each child to bring them up and educate them, and when they became of age sent them $5,000 each to start them off in life. Bennett was a pretty good scout, it seems.

The telegraphic report of the battle sent from Bismarck to the war department and also to the Associated Press was sent by another La Crosse man, John Carahan, who was another Atlantic and Pacific operator in the office at La Crosse, and who is now at Missoula, Mont. I had a talk with Fred Sever, who was an infantry sergeant under General Terry and who helped to bury the bodies of the killed, and he says they were all mutilated except the body of Custer and a civilian whom he did not know. His account seems to agree with the account published in the Bismarck Tribune. I asked Sever to describe the mutilations and he said there were all scalped except Custer and the civilian. Many had their bowels ripped open and all the entrails string out, eyes gouged out and features hacked and slashed so they were unrecognizable, fingers, toes, ears and noses cut off and strung on sticks to hang around the Indians' necks as necklaces, also teeth knocked out for the same purpose. Also every other conceivable indignity was practiced upon the dead.

Eats Custer's Heart
It is said that John in the face cut out the heart of Tom Custer and ate part of it—Ruin in the face says himself that he did. He and Tom Custer were the bitterest enemies. Tom Newcomb, a scout under Custer at one time but who during this campaign was with General Crook who had a battle eight days before the Custer fight, not far away on the Rosebud and who beat off the Indians, was at the battlefield and is an old time friend of mine. Tom never was a soldier but was a scout, guide, interpreter, packer and dispatch bearer and understood the Sioux language. Several years after the battle they had Galt, the Sioux chief, up to the battlefield to find out from him if they could what took place on that 25th day of June, 1876.

Tom said, "I asked Galt in Sioux, barrels of heavy oil. Let's hope that the divorce from thank-yem-mans and sick holes may be made permanent by decree of the city dads. There does not appear to be any valid reason for the country highways approaching the city being smoother than the streets within the municipality. In the olden days you could always tell where the rural highway ended and where the city street began by the bumps.

for he talks no English, how many people he had with him. He said, many, many—more than 12,000. Which, if true, would indicate that he had at least 5,000 fighting men. Any boy 12 or 14 years old who could handle a 45-75 carbine was a desperate fighting man that day and dangerous as a rattlesnake. So that Custer was hopelessly outnumbered.

Tom said, "I asked Galt how long the fight lasted." Galt held up his hand to show the position of the sun in the sky and said, "The sun stood still while the fight lasted," which was his way of saying that the time was very short, for if Galt had 5,000 men they went over Custer like a big wave and annihilated him, and he never had a chance.

An old Cheyenne, when asked how the Indians wiped out Custer's command, broke a twig into a dozen pieces and carefully stuck them into the ground. As soon as the twig was placed to his liking he spread his hands and brought them together smartly upon the twig, rolling and grinding them to pieces between his palms. Dropping the broken bits of wood to the ground, he filled and lighted his pipe. His story was told.

None Got Away
Tom said to Galt, "One man got away." Galt said, "No man got away." Tom said, "All the men were found but one," meaning Lieutenant Kelley, who it was supposed, was captured and afterwards killed.

Galt said, "One man on a horse broke through. We followed him long ways and killed him and his horse." Galt gave them the direction and described the place and they went there and found the bones of a man and a horse and military buttons and equipment enough to make sure it was a soldier which seemed to settle the matter of the missing man, and as Galt said, "No man got away."

Remarkable Fight
The battle which resulted in the death of General Custer and so many brave men with him has long been studied and analyzed by the most conscientious historians, and it is not saying too much to say that every report of it and every incident either by writing or word of mouth is fascinating for that fight is one of the most remarkable incidents in American military history and no battle holds the interest of the people of this country as does Custer's last stand.

The mystery surrounding it and what took place on that 25th day of June seems to hold the imagination of all people. Nobody lived to tell the tale and the Indians have been most reticent and silent on the subject. I knew Two Moons, the Cheyenne chief, who with Crazy Horse and his band of Cheyennes stampeded Custer's horses, and knew men who have known Two Moons well for forty years, and none of them ever got anything out of him. He was dumb when that subject was brought up.

FIRST ACCOUNT OF CUSTER'S LAST BATTLE

The first account of the Custer massacre, June 25, 1876, as it appeared in the Bismarck, Dakota, Tribune of July 5, that year, follows:

It will be remembered that the Bismarck Tribune sent a special correspondent with Gen. Terry who was the only professional correspondent with the expedition. Kellogg's last words to the writer were: "We leave the Rosebud tomorrow and by the time this reaches you we will have the red devils, with what result remains to be seen. I go with Custer and will be at the death." How true! On the morning of the 22nd General Custer took up the line of march for the trail of the Indians, reported by Reno on the Rosebud. Gen. Terry, apprehending danger, urged Custer to take additional men, but Custer having full confidence in his men and in their ability to cope with the Indians in whatever force he might meet them, declined the proffered assistance and marched with his regiment alone. He was instructed to strike the trail of the Indians, to follow it until he discovered their position, and report by courier to Gen. Terry who would reach the mouth of the Little Horn by the evening of the 25th, when he would act in concert with Custer in the final wiping out. At four o'clock, the afternoon of the 24th, Custer scouts reported the location of a village recently deserted, whereupon Custer went into camp, marching again at 11 p. m., continuing the march until daylight, when he again went into camp for coffee. Custer was then fifteen miles from the village located on the Little Horn, one of the branches of the Big Horn, twenty miles above its mouth, which could be seen from the top of the divide. After lunch Gen. Custer pushed on. The Indians by this time had discovered his approach and soon were seen mounting in great haste, riding here and there. It was presumed in full retreat. This idea was strengthened by finding a freshly abandoned Indian camp with a deserted tepee, in which one of their dead had been left, about six miles from where the battle took place. Custer with his usual vigor pushed on making seventy-eight miles without sleep, and attacked the village where he found Companies C, E, F, I, and L, Seventh cavalry, Reno having in the meantime attacked it at its head with three companies of cavalry which, being surrounded, fell at a desperate hand to hand conflict, in which many were killed and wounded, cut their way to a bluff about three hundred feet high, where they were reinforced by four companies of cavalry under Colonel Benteen. In gaining this position Colonel Reno had to recross the Little Horn, and at the ford the hottest fight occurred. It was here where Lieutenants McIntosh, Hodgson and Dr. DeWolf fell, where Charles Reynolds fell in a hand to hand conflict with a dozen or more Sioux, emptying several chambers of his revolver, each time bringing a red-skin before he was brought down—shot through the heart. It was here that the Sioux surrendered his spirit to the one who gave it, fighting the natural and hereditary foes of his tribe, as well as the foes of the whites.

The Sioux dashed up beside the soldiers in some instances knocking them from their horses and killing them at their pleasure. This was the case with Lieutenant McIntosh, who was unarmed except with a saber. He was pulled from his horse, tortured and finally murdered at the pleasure of the red devils. It was here that Fred Benteen was separated from the command and lay all night, with the surrounding fiends dealing death and destruction to his comrades within a few feet of him, and, but time will permit us to relate the story, through some means succeeded in saving his fine black stallion in which he took so much pride. The ford was crossed, the summit of the bluffs, having, Colonel Smith says, the steepest sides that he ever saw ascended by a horse or man, reached, though the ascent was made under a galling fire.

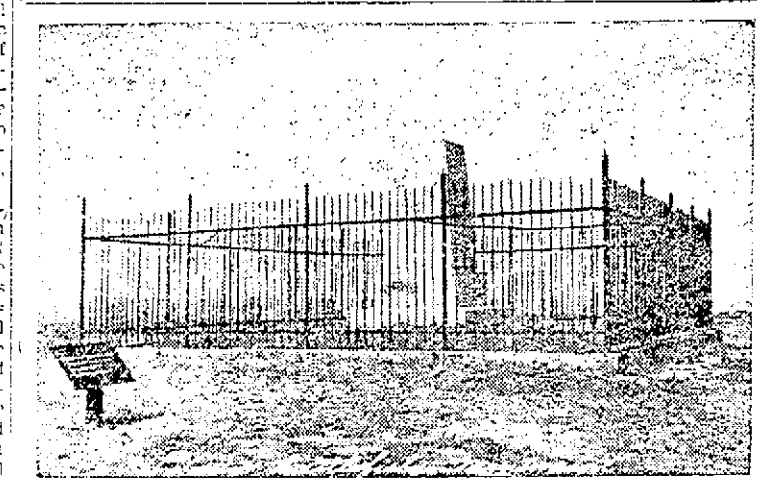

Companies engaged in this affair were those of Captains Boylan, French and McIntosh. Colonel Reno had gone ahead with these companies in obedience to the order of General Custer, fighting most gallantly, driving back repeatedly the Indians who charged in their front, but the fire from the bluff being so galling, forced the movement heretofore alluded to. Signals were given and soon Benteen with the four companies in reserve came up in time to save Reno from the fate with which Custer about this time met. The Indians charged the hill time and again but were each time repulsed with heavy slaughter by its gallant defenders. Soon, however, they reached bluffs higher than those occupied by Reno; and opened a destructive fire from points beyond the reach of cavalry carbines. Nothing being heard from General Custer, Colonel Weir was ordered to push his command along the bank of the river in the direction he was supposed to be, but he was soon driven back, retreating with difficulty. About this time the Indians received strong reinforcements, and literally swarmed the hillsides and on the plains, coming so near at times that stones were thrown into the ranks of Colonel Reno's command by these unarmored or out of ammunition. Charge after charge in quick succession, the fight being sometimes almost hand to hand. But they drew off finally, taking to the hills and ravines.

Colonel Benteen charged a large party in a ravine, driving them from it in confusion. They evidently trusted their numbers and did not look for so bold a movement. They were within the range of the coral and wounded several men, J. C. Wagner, among the number, in the head, while many horses and mules were killed. Near 10 o'clock the fight closed, and the men worked all night strengthening their breastworks, using knives, tin cups and plates, in place of spades and picks, taking up the fight again in the morning. In the afternoon of the second day the desire for water became almost intolerable. The wounded were begging piteously for it; the tongues of the men were swollen and their lips parched, and from lack of rest they were almost exhausted. So a bold attempt was made for water. Men volunteered to go with canisters and camp kettles, though to go was almost certain death. The attempt succeeded, though in making it one man was killed and several wounded. The men were relieved and that night the animals were watered. The fight closed at dark, opening again next morning, and continuing until the afternoon of the 27th. Meanwhile the men became more and more exhausted and all wondered what had become of Custer. A panic all at once was created among the Indians, and they stampeded from the hills and from the valleys, and the village was soon deserted except for the dead, Reno and his brave men felt that Custer was high. General Terry came in sight, and strong men went upon each others' necks, but no word was had from Custer. Handshaking and congratulations were scarcely over when Lieutenant Bradley reported that he had found Custer dead, with one hundred and ninety cavalrymen. Imagine the effect. Words cannot picture the feeling of these, his comrades and soldiers. General Terry sought the spot and found it to be too true. Of those brave men who followed Custer, all perished; no one lives to tell the story of the battle. Those who were left by chiefs carrying flags of various colors, nine of whom were found in a burial tent on the field of battle. Many other dead were found on the field, and near it ten squaws at one point in the ravine—evidently the work of Reno or Crook scouts.

The Indian dead were great in number, as they were constantly assaulting an inferior force. The camp had the appearance of being abandoned in haste. The most gorgeous ornaments were found on the bodies of the dead chiefs, and hundreds of finely dressed and painted robes and skins were thrown about the camp. The Indians were certainly severely punished.

We said of those who went into battle with Custer none are living—one Crow scout hid himself in the field, and witnessed and survived the battle. His story is plausible, and is accepted, but we have not the room for it now.

BURIAL GROUND OF MEN WHO WERE IN CUSTER'S LAST CHARGE

Describing the pictures herewith reproduced Mr. Bacheller writes:

"There is a vault under this monument and in this vault are all the bones of the men who fell in the battle except, perhaps, some of the officers. Fred Sever, the sergeant previously mentioned who had charge of the burial, says that the bodies were rolled in blankets and a shallow grave dug where the man lay and the body was rolled in and covered up. He says the graves were necessarily shallow as they had few picks and shovels and the ground was very hard. A wooden stake or a stone at the head and foot served to mark the place. No identification was made as to the men, but the officers were identified so far as possible and their graves marked with their names and rank.

Identification in many cases was impossible as the men were stripped of all clothing and mutilated beyond all recognition and the burial was done by infantrymen who knew none of the cavalry at all. Also the bodies and laid in the hot sun for two days and decomposition had set in and the burial was a hurry-up job. Decomposition in many cases also prevented identification.

"After a year or so the vault was built and the graves opened and the bones taken out and placed in the vault and the monument erected over it. The name of every man who fell is inscribed on the monument, even 'Isiah' the negro interpreter and the Oricore and Crow scouts, also the names of all the civilians including Mark Kellogg.

Thirty Made Widows
"General King of Milwaukee told me that when the Far West went back to the landing at Ft. Abraham Lincoln on the night of the 5th day of July, ten days after the battle, Mrs. Custer was sitting on the veranda of the commandant's quarters and that thirty women knew within a few minutes thereafter that they were widows. He also said that a week previous to that time the Indian had known and told that the 'Yellow Hair' and all his men were killed, but how they knew it or found it out was a mystery that nobody could solve. The country at large did not know it until the Far West came into port on July 5th."

IRRITATION

Magistrate (severely) — Horse whiplash is the only suitable punishment for you and your kind. (The idea of a man of your size beating a poor weak woman like that.)

Prisoner—But, your honor, she keeps irritating and irritating me all the time.

Magistrate—How does she irritate and irritate you?

Prisoner—Why, she keeps saying, 'Jit me! Beat me! Just hit me once, and I'll have you hauled up before that bald-headed old ronebrate of a magistrate and see what he'll do with you.'

Magistrate (choking)—Discharged.

BODY OF CLARENCE HOFF INTERRED WITH MILITARY HONORS IN HOME CEMETERY

VETERAN PRINTER VISITS THE CITY AFTER MANY YEARS

Barney Evans, Former Employee of the Old Chronicle is Caller Here

A man who is at home anywhere, he hangs his hat is A. B. "Barney" Evans, veteran printer of the old days, before modern machinery came into use in newspaper plants, who is making a short stay in La Crosse in connection with the soap business in which he is now interested.

He is a familiar figure in every city of any size in this country, Canada, Mexico, or Cuba. He worked in La Crosse in 1884 on the old Chronicle and also for Boycott's printing house. When the first Linotype machine was installed, some forty years ago, he was employed by the New York World.

Mr. Evans started his career as an itinerant printer when he was thirteen years old on his brother's newspaper in Bellevue, Ia., where he was born. From that time the urge of the wanderlust has kept him on the move from one town to another, and even now he is not contented to remain long in one place. It is twelve years since he has followed his trade, but he still takes a great deal of interest in everything connected with printing and the newspaper business.

He is an interesting man to talk to and a striking personality, a big burly man, reminding one somewhat of William H. Taft, and, once seen, he is always remembered.

"Everywhere I go I always run across someone I know," declared Mr. Evans. "I met a couple of men in the Tribune plant here today who remembered me although I had not seen them for ten years or more."

Children are a great delight to "Barney" Evans. He exhibited a photograph of a pretty and charming little girl of about ten years which he always carries with him.

"That's my sweetheart," he said proudly. "I met her in Kansas City and she is the prettiest and smartest girl I ever saw in my life. I bought her that dress she's got on—the first new dress she's ever had. I guess, and I certainly felt well repaid in that youngster's joy."

Sometimes Mr. Evans' kind heart gets him into difficulties. He told of one time when he was in El Paso, Texas in the winter and there were several inches of snow on the ground. "I saw a little peon girl walking barefooted through the snow," he said, "so I took her into a shoe-store and bought her a pair of shoes, the first she had ever had on. The next day every inhabitant of that part of the city was after me to buy them something."

Clippings from various newspapers where Mr. Evans has worked assert that he claims to be the most traveled printer in the world, but he is in reality a very modest man, and said that the newspapers made those statements on their own authority.

"Remember, I don't claim anything, so please don't say I do," was his parting words. He is leaving in a day or two for St. Paul, as he has felt the call to be on the move again.

DOUBLE WEDDING

LONDON.—Miss Amorel Harris, daughter of the governor of Newfoundland, came here to marry Lieutenant Colonel A. E. Bernard. Half of the wedding cake was eaten at a celebration in Newfoundland and the other half at the festivities here.

TOO HEAVY FOR PLANE

LONDON.—Three fat men booked passage on the air express to London. The pilot couldn't make the plane fly. So another machine was brought and two of the heavy passengers transferred to it.

RIFLE BALL IN HEART

LONDON.—Charles Baker, war veteran, has a rifle bullet in his heart. Charles says he doesn't notice the bullet unless he gets into an argument; then it makes him dizzy.

The body of Clarence N. Hoff, who gave his life for his country in the war, was brought from the battlefields of France and interred in the home cemetery at Chasaburg with military honors, on July 5.

Clarence Hoff was born December 24, 1894, a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hoff of Chasaburg. He joined the army in April, 1917, and was stationed at Camp Forest, Georgia, with Company M, infantry, a regular army command. He went overseas in March, 1918, and was put into service at the front in May of the same year. He was killed in action, September 12, 1919.

The funeral services were held under the auspices of the American Legion at the home. Rev. Hyland of Coon Valley and Rev. Ronsdredt conducted the services. Short talks were given by Melvin Hagen and William H. Remer.

The remains were escorted from the house to church by former service men, the pallbearers and firing squad being composed entirely of men who served in the late war.

Surviving are a father, six brothers and two sisters.

HO. COMPANY GIVES DANCE ON MONDAY TO SWELL MESS FUNDS

In order to assemble a mess-fund for giving out rations with camp luxuries during their stay at Camp Douglas the new headquarters company of the 120th Field Artillery, recently organized in La Crosse, will give a dance Monday evening in Yeomen hall. The hall has been donated to the company for the occasion, and a large attendance with consequent improvement of the company's mess-fund is expected according to Walter Wagner, who has charge of the dance arrangements.

Obeyon is planning fresh proposals, which is just the trouble with the other ones—they were too fresh.

EAT AND BE COOL; HOT WEATHER MENUS BY COUNTY NURSE

Elsie Burkhardt Suggests Sample Meals that People May Arrange Other Dishes

AVOID EATING TOO MUCH MEAT IS SUMMER ADVICE Frequent Bathing Also Aids Health and Disposition

BY ELSIE BURKHARDT (La Crosse County Nurse.)

THE true science of feeding should be thoroughly studied. There are few subjects deserving of more careful consideration than that of food; its composition, preparation and effect upon the human system.

Foods are substances which when taken into the body supply the necessary elements for promoting its growth and repairing its waste. There are accessories that give flavor to food, increase the appetite, stimulate secretion and thus aid the digestive functions—as beverages and condiments.

Classification of Foods

Classified according to functions there are: 1—Tissue formers or body builders. 2—Energy or work and heat producers. 3—Regulators of body processes. A mixed diet therefore is necessary, as no one food fulfills all the requirements of a "perfect food."

The diet for summer varies from that for winter in that heat producing foods should be eliminated during the hot weather. Eat a little less food, as you need less heat in hot weather. Eat such foods as "fill up," but which do not make too much heat. Some of these are lettuce, celery, beets, cabbage, carrots, tomatoes, cucumbers, asparagus and spinach. However, to have a well balanced meal it is necessary to have some protein, such taken in the form of eggs, milk or cheese is more easily digested than meats. Beef, fish and poultry are not as fat as pork and are therefore better for summer diet. Avoid eating too much meat.

Fruit Juice Beverage

Beverages made from fruit juices are cooling and refreshing, they aid in the part of the diet as regulators of body processes. Sip all cold drinks slowly. Do not use ice in the drinks unless you know it is pure ice. Do not eat a heavy meal when you are very tired or overheated, or before going in swimming. It is sometimes better to skip a meal or to eat fruits or salad.

Ice cream, sherbets and all less form a delightful part of a summer menu. Kids like it. They should have it. It is the most desirable between meal food.

The principal food for the children should be milk and milk foods, plenty of vegetables and fruit. Bananas and nuts contain fat and are heat producers, hence are not desirable in meal food.

Children under six years of age should not be given meat. After that age small quantities may be given. Eggs and milk supply the necessary amount of protein necessary for body building.

Bill and Jack
Bill Tilden and Jack Dempsey defended their titles on the same day and almost at the same hour.

While Dempsey was proving to the world at Jersey City that those who had hoped Carpenter as having a chance were wrong, Tilden, on the tennis courts of Wimbledon, England, was discounting the prophecy of tennis fans that he had gone stale and stood a chance to lose.

Dempsey, the champion of the world, lost to Carpenter in the second round of their battle decisively. Tilden lost a few sets to his opponent at the start. But they were both decidedly on their feet when the bell rang. That's why they are great.

But he is still at it. He loves to hit. He always did. And he always could.

Knapp carried Evans to the thirty-fourth green before Evans could annex his sixth title. Evans did not have to extend himself, however, as the Iowa was over-golfed, having played all last week in the Iowa championship and had hard matches this week in the western.

Knapp was never up except once, losing the first hole 4-5 by getting in a pit.

The tie for low medal score will be decided later. Knapp and Harrison Johnston of St. Paul sharing that honor in the qualifying rounds with 144 for thirty-six holes.

CINDERELLA HORSE
Playfellow, full brother of the illustrious Man o' War, has turned out to be the Cinderella of the running tracks.

Bought by Sam Hildreth a few weeks ago for a sum over $500,000, in good faith that the horse was sound, Playfellow is now called in turf vernacular a "wind sucker."

J. F. Fitzsimmons claims that when he sold the colt to Hildreth the animal was sound and not bothered with his wind.

The courts will have to decide whether Hildreth gets back his hundred thousand or not. We aren't interested in the litigation.

But how it would hurt Man o' War's pride if he could be made to understand that his little brother was in trouble.

There are tragedies in the horse world just as in our own.

DELICATE GAME
Golf is a delicate game when analyzed.

The turning of the body, the sagging of the club a trifle late, the position of the shoulders, the feet and the grip on the club all count in the winning or losing of championships.

When Miss Cecil Litch successfully defended her English championship this year at Turnberry, England, it was Miss Joyce Wethered who lost through a body fault.

She kept mistaking all her long shots. Observers noted her mistake. She was turning her right shoulder and body too soon at the beginning of the down stroke. As a result she was driving the ball too far to the right and losing from 20 to 30 yards.

When told of her fault by a Scottish professional her game braced.

Some trained voices run neighbors wild.

TEAMS WITH PUNCH
With the major league seasons nearing the half-way mark, it looks more and more like the world's series would be staged in the City of Smoke and the Indians' tempo this fall between Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

When two teams cling so tenaciously to the top rung it proves they are the teams which have the punch.

That's what it takes to win pennants as well as championships in the annals of sports.

Many think the real light weight champion is their grocer.

SCHALK'S BURDEN
Catcher Ray Schalk is working himself into handling Kid Gleason's kid pitchers.

A great deal of the burden of developing the young Sox moundmen has fallen to the lot of the diminutive Schalk.

There isn't a catcher in the game today who works as hard as the diminutive Ray.

He loses from 5 to 10 pounds during an afternoon's battle royal.

If other players worked as hard as Schalk they'd lose pounds, too. It would do Babe Ruth a lot of good to get Schalk's recipe.

Portage and Nelsons Clash Here Sunday

Another record crowd of spectators is expected to turn out to witness the return match of the Nelson clothing company baseball team with the aggregation from Portage this afternoon at Copeland park.

Wild rumors that the visitors will appear with the "best in baseball" from all sections of the country in the game this afternoon have been circulated about town in quarters where baseball "dope" is the main topic of conversation.

In any event, the Nelson team is prepared for the worst, and is in shape following the two contests with the Giants, to give real battle to any invading aggregation.

Hix has been called upon to shoulder the responsibility of pitching the game and with him "working" as he did in the two games at Geneva on the Fourth of July, little anxiety over the outcome of today's clash ought to be apparent.

LA CROSSE CLUB TO TAKE ON ETTRICK SUNDAY AFTERNOON

According to the schedule of the La Crosse baseball club, the team will journey to Ettrick for a game with the aggregation representing that city Sunday afternoon.

With several new additions to the team, the foremost being that of Al Dacey, star Wisconsin football man, who is a permanent fixture behind the plate for the locals, the team is expected to return with another scalp after the game this afternoon.

Krains, in all probability, will do the hurling for the La Crosse club and with his showing against the Caladenia aggregation a week ago, promises to hold the Ettrick batsmen in check.

LA CRESCENT MEETS PEERLESS-CHAINS AT HOKAH ON SUNDAY

The La Crescent baseball team is scheduled to meet the Winona Peerless-Chains, strongest aggregation of the up river city, on the Hokah diamond Sunday afternoon, according to announcement of the La Crescent management Saturday. Losses will hurt for the La Crescent club and it is predicted that the game will be hard fought.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Vincent Richards of Yonkers, N. Y., by defeating John Hennessy of Indianapolis, in the final round of the western tennis championship here Saturday afternoon, won the right to play Walter T. Hayes of Chicago, western titleholder, in the challenge round Sunday. The score Saturday was 7-5, 6-3, 6-2.

TORONTO, Ont.—W. Bates of California won the Canadian men's open singles championship by defeating E. L. Lacy, his team-mate, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3.

Perhaps the men who set railroad rates are also the originators of this permanent blush.

IN THE SPORT MIRROR

BY "BANGS"

Pronounced revival of the national pastime among the younger generation of the city during the present season may be interpreted to mean that La Crosse will eventually become the home of several baseball players who will participate in the games of the association and major leagues along with those of other cities destined to occupy berths in the upper realm of baseball.

From the beginning of the season Junior diamonds and empty lots about the city have yielded admirably as a rendezvous for busy youngsters who have frequented them each day and evening for the daily game of ball. Records show that more Junior ball teams have been organized in the city this year than in any previous to this time.

Unlike other seasons, teams organized at the beginning of the year have continued actively to schedule and play games among themselves, having substantially withstood the springtime youthful fancy of organizing and being a member of a regular baseball team. The Junior league composed of eight teams, organized by the La Crosse Outdoor Sports association, marked the initial success of an attempt of this kind and accomplished a great deal in the promotion of the sport in the city.

Not alone has the revival of baseball been apparent among the Junior teams of the city. Young men, whose years and experience for the time being have disqualified them for participation in La Crosse's major clubs, have taken an active interest in the game with the result that the city now boasts a number of Senior ball clubs. Never before in recent years has the city so awakened to the call of baseball.

For the past number of years and up until the beginning of the present season, the city was represented by only one major club, namely, the Nelson Clothing company baseball club. Through the efforts of a number of public spirited baseball fans another club bearing the name of "La Crosse" has been organized and in spite of the fact that the club is experiencing its first season out, the La Crosse baseball club is going good.

It is hoped that the sudden departure from the heretofore dormant state of baseball may continue with the years to the end that La Crosse may eventually become a member of a large territorial league and that youth of the city may realize on the possibilities of a successful baseball career.

An abatement of the practice of many baseball fans who witness the attractions from the grandstand to leave before the last ball is caught ending the game was seen at the close of the second contest with the Union Giants at Copeland park Friday evening following the spectacular turn in the ninth inning which gave the Nelsons a victory on Thursday evening.

Whether those who witnessed the entire game with the exception of the whirlwind finish will remain in their seats hereafter until the game is over, is a question to be determined in the future.

It is apparent that the restlessness which distinctly characterizes a La Crosse audience at the theatre or any other playhouse in the city five minutes before the curtain drops has come to prevail at baseball attractions at Copeland park.

Spectators who have deposited their admission price are entitled to an unobstructed view of the entire game and those who repeatedly make a practice of dashing for the exits at the beginning of the ninth inning or thereabouts, are respectfully requested to await the end of the game.

RICHARDS MAY NOW PLAY WALTER HAYES FOR NET HONORS

MEMBER OF CHICAGO CUBS PITCHING STAFF HERE WITH PORTAGE

Communication from Portage Late Saturday Night Brings Information Here

VAUGHN IS REGULAR MEMBER OF CUBS' STAFF

Intimate that Cicotte Was to Have Appeared Here Today

A telegram from Chicago to the management of the Portage baseball club late Saturday night and relayed to the management of the Nelson clothing company organization read to the effect that "Hippo" Vaughn, until a week ago a regular member of the Chicago Cubs' pitching staff, will come to La Crosse as the hurling ace for the Portage aggregation against the local ball club at Copeland park this afternoon.

According to the communication, it was apparent that the Portage outfit had intended to secure Cicotte, member of the Chicago "black hose" for the Sunday battle, however the telegram stated that bondsmen declared it inadvisable for him to leave Chicago at this time in that the trial of those alleged to be implicated in the "throwing" of the 1919 series begins on Monday.

Regular Cub Hurler
Particulars of Vaughn's one day release making it possible for him to appear with Portage against the Nelsons here this afternoon have not been learned. The Chicago hurler has been working regularly with the Cubs, for unknown reasons he is alleged to have deserted the Chicago Nationals while playing a series in New York, where detectives were employed in an effort to learn his whereabouts.

At any rate, La Crosse baseball fans will have the opportunity of witnessing big league stuff at their front door in the game today and the appearance of "Hippo" with the visitors is expected to bring out the multitudes as spectators of the contest.
